Quincy School Employee Receives Replacement Bike Thanks To QCU

Justin Nickerson Is On The Road Again After $500 Donation

Imagine if your only mode of transportation was your bike and it was stolen while you were at work?

Justin Nickerson knows that feeling. When he finished up his work shift at South West Middle School one recent day, he discovered the chain was cut and someone had stolen his bike. Justin - who is autistic

- is a well-known, dedicated worker and former Quincy Public Schools student. He was devastated when realized that his bike had been taken since he relies on it to ride to and from his job, a job he is committed to every single day.

Quincy Credit Union, when they heard of Justin's situation through a teacher at the South West Middle School, immediately wanted to help replace Justin's bike. The credit union donated $500 dollars for Justin to purchase the bike of his dreams.

Kellie Gillis, QCU Business Development representative and Julia Boutchie, QCU branch manager, had the opportunity to surprise him at work with a jumbo check to reveal the big news that he would receive funds to replace his bike.

"I appreciate the Quincy Credit Union for their thoughtfulness and kindness to the community and I wish good luck to QCU for their effort to help others in the community," Justin said.

Councillors Oppose Reprecincting Bill

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors voiced their opposition to proposed legislation on Beacon Hill that would change the reprecincting process that will take place this year following the 2020 census.

Councillors approved a resolution opposed to the bill, H.3863, in an 8-0 vote on June 21. Ward 2 Councillor Anthony Andronico, who works as aide to Sen. Patrick O'Connor of Weymouth, abstained from the vote.

In years past, municipipalities have drawn new precinct lines every ten years based on the latest US Census data. The state legislature then uses those new precincts to draw up districts for the legislature, Congress and the Governor's Council.

The proposed bill - which was filed because the US Census data used to determine precinct lines will be delivered by the end of September, six months later than usual - would flip

School District To Hire Three New Principals

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Public Schools will have three new principals next year, with North Quincy High School's principal leaving the district and two others retiring.

Supt. Kevin Mulvey, in an interview with The Sun, said North Quincy Principal Robert Shaw would be leaving his position at the end of this week after accepting a job outside the district.

Shaw has worked at North for 21 years, Mulvey said, starting his career as an English teacher and later becoming a department head.

Shaw was the assistant principal at North from 2009 to 2012, when he was hired as principal to replace Earl

Councillors Pass $345.98 Million FY '22 Budget

By SCOTT JACKSON

Following more than eight hours of hearings over the course of two nights, city councillors passed a $345.98 million general fund budget for Quincy for the fiscal year that starts Thursday, an increase of $5.86 million over the prior fiscal year's budget.

Mayor Thomas Koch in May proposed a $346.65 million budget for fiscal year 2022, which runs from July 1 of this year through June 30, 2022. Councillors made two cuts totaling $668,664 to the budget before passing it, though a portion of the money that was taken from the budget could be put back in later this year.

Councillors approved the revised budget in a 7-2 vote on June 24, with Anne Mahoney and Brian Palmucci opposed.

Mahoney said she voted against the budget it was not transparent enough. She was concerned that there are a number of city employees whose salaries are funded by sources outside of the general fund including bonds, federal grants and pandemic relief money, and the general fund budget

Father Bill's/MainSpring Receives $600,000 In Grants

Arbella Insurance Foundation Supports Key Developments In Quincy, Brockton

Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS), a regional leader of services to prevent and end homelessness, has received two grants totaling $600,000 from the Arbella Insurance Foundation in support of a pair of trailblazing initiatives in Quincy and Brockton.

As part of the Foundation's ongoing efforts to support the local community, the Arbella Insurance Foundation awarded FBMS two distinct grants of $300,000. One grant will support FBMS' Housing Resource Center project in Quincy, and the other will support the agency's plan to convert an underutilized hotel in Brockton into 69 permanent supportive housing units for formerly homeless individuals.

"We are incredibly grateful to the Arbella Insurance Foundation. For the past three decades they have been champions of our mission, stepping up year after year to assist the most vulnerable members of our community," said FBMS President and CEO John Yazwinski. "The Housing Resource Center in Quincy and the hotel-to-housing conversion in Brockton are going to be game-changers in our communities and the first of their kind in Massachusetts. The Foundation has long believed in our vision to end homelessness on the South Shore and across Southern Massachusetts, and these two grants will help move us closer to that goal."

Last year, the Arbella Insurance Foundation played a vital role in FBMS' early response to the COVID-19 pandemic, offering to match up to $50,000 in donations to FBMS. For many years, the Foundation has been a leading sponsor of the agency's annual FoodFest fundraiser and employees from the Arbella Insurance Group have volunteered at FBMS' emergency shelters.

"Father Bill's & MainSpring has been a beacon of hope on the South Shore," said John Donohue, chairman, president and CEO of the Arbella Insurance Group and chairman and president of the Arbella Insurance Foundation. "These two initiatives will have a direct, positive and meaningful impact on the local community. We're grateful for the opportunity to support FBMS in its mission to make the world more equitable by ending homelessness."

FBMS' Housing Resource Center in Quincy aims to transform how the agency assists individuals experiencing, or at risk of, homelessness by replacing its existing overnight emergency shelter with two new buildings consisting of a new day center, an emergency shelter, and on-site efficiency apartments. The new approach would dedicate more staff and resources to homelessness prevention efforts and rapid re-housing to reduce the overall reliance on overnight shelter.

In Brockton, FBMS has partnered with public and private organizations to purchase the Rodeway Inn, an underutilized hotel, and convert the property into housing. The conversion model, which has been adopted in other parts of the country during the pandemic, plays a critical role in depopulating emergency shelters and protecting vulnerable individuals during a public health crisis. The conversion project will reduce Brockton's individual shelter population by 50 percent, with future investments in housing needed to maintain those gains and achieve further progress.

that process. The legislature would draw up the legislative, Congressional and Governor's Council districts first, and then local officials would have 30 days to finish repredistricting. That new process would only be used during this redistricting cycle.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, who introduced the resolution, said municipalities would be better served if the process started at the local level.

"While I have the utmost respect and trust for our four legislators, the three in the House and one in the Senate...I can't say that I trust the other hundreds of members of the legislature to know what is best for Quincy, what is best for Ward 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, to know where those lines should be drawn," Palmucci said.

"I just think that this is something that is really a bad idea. Government is always best at the lowest, most local level. And, it's not just us - it's every municipality."

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris cosponsored the resolution with Palmucci.

"It is really important that we do send a message," Harris said. "We should have at least a say in the matter of what is going on."

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan Jr. said local input is important to the redistricting process.

"The state and the federal government don't worry where the city councillors are or where certain boundaries are or where certain things are," he said. "It is very important to have some local input."

The state and federal government do have oversight over local redistricting processes under the current arrangement, Phelan added.

"In the end, both the state and the federal government still have the oversight over us. We send what we do back, and they review it and have to approve it," he said. "It's just not the city doing it in a vacuum."

City Clerk Nicole Crispo told councillors local officials have a feel for their communities.

"The numbers are late this year, however, there is the element of knowing your city and knowing your neighborhoods," she said.

One thing local officials take into consideration is keeping residents close to their polling places, Crispo said.

"That important aspect does happen at the local level, so we will take that into consideration," she said. "If it flips and the legislators draw the lines, then I don't know where we stand because we have never done it this way before and, so far, we have gotten no comment on what our role as a local government will be."

MA House Asian Caucus Condemns Targeting Of Southeast Asian Americans For Deportation

The House Asian Caucus is joined by 59 of their colleagues seeking to condemn the disproportionate rise in deportations of Southeast Asian refugees.

Having recently marked World Refugee Day, the House Asian Caucus is focused on spotlighting the unacknowledged reality of the Southeast Asian refugee population here in Massachusetts and across the country. Since 2017 the number of Southeast Asians who have been deported have increased exponentially. Cambodian American deportations increased 279% in 2018 alone. The Caucus stands in solidarity with Massachusetts' Southeast Asian community and calls on the President and Congress to end the policy of racially biased forced deportations.

"It is time for our federal government to reexamine the broken wheel we call our immigration system," said Rep. Donald H. Wong (R-Saugus). "Racially based deportations are unacceptable. We are all one, we should all be judged as humans."

"Breaking up families and forcing legally residing refugees back to communist dictatorships where they are not welcome is cruel," said Rep. Tackey Chan (D-Quincy). "Race-based deportations and the usage of human beings as bargaining chips in international relations to further political agendas is unacceptable. The US government needs to stop these practices."

"As a political refugee who came to America when I was a child, I am fiercely opposed to the selection of certain Southeast Asian groups for forced deportation back to the countries they fled," said Rep. Tram T. Nguyen (D-Andover). "These refugees survived war and genocide to build lives and raise families here in the U.S.; they are part of the American fabric and shouldn't be ripped away from it. It's inhumane."

"Our Southeast Asian communities have been relentlessly attacked by the many years of deportation and separation of families," said Rep. Vanna Howard (D-Lowell). "Since our arrival to the United States from our war-torn countries, we sought shelter, sent our children to public schools and contributed to the vibrancy of our communities. The deportation of some in our Southeast Asian community is no solution to solving our flawed immigration and criminal justice systems. We must continue to support and stand in solidarity with our Southeast Asian communities. Let us continue to fight against these immoral deportations, empower our refugee communities, and keep our families together." "We stand in solidarity with the Commonwealth's Southeast Asian population and ask the Biden Administration for the modernization of these policies and the further remediation of such racial injustices," said Representative Paul A. Schmid

Concerts On The Lawn: Crowes Pasture July 10

On Saturday, July 10 from 3 to 4 p.m. bring a chair or a blanket for a concert on the Thomas Crane Library lawn in Quincy Center.

Featured will be Crowes Pasture, a roots-infused, contemporary folk duo. Hailing from Boston, the romantic clawhammer banjo playing by Monique Byrne and expressive guitar picking by Andy Rogovin are enlivened by their personal chemistry and intimate harmonies. Nominated for an International Acoustic Music Award (Best Group/Duo Finalist, 2020), a Boston Music Award (Americana Artist of the Year, 2019) and a New England Music Award (Roots Act of the Year, 2019), the duo's 2019 single, "Slow It Down" reached #1 on the International Folk DJ Charts and their album by the same name reached #5.

In the event of inclement weather, this concert will be held the following Saturday, July 17th, at 3 p.m.

The concert is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

- On July 16, 1863, the draft riots enter their fourth day in New York City in response to the Enrollment Act. Although avoiding military service became much more difficult, wealthier citizens could still pay a $300 fee to stay home.

- On July 14, 1881, Sheriff Pat Garrett kills Henry McCarty, known as Billy the Kid. Garrett had been tracking the Kid for three months after the gunslinger escaped from prison only days before his scheduled execution. At the trial, the judge had sentenced Billy the Kid to hang until "you are dead, dead, dead." Billy reportedly responded, "And you can go to hell, hell, hell."

- On July 13, 1930, France defeats Mexico 4-1 and the U.S. blanks Belgium 3-0 in the first-ever World Cup football matches, played in Montevideo, Uruguay. The World Cup has since become the world's most-watched sporting event.

- On July 18, 1940, Franklin Roosevelt, who first took office in 1933 as America's 32nd president, is nominated for an unprecedented third term. He would eventually be elected to a record four terms.

- On July 17, 1955, Disneyland opens on former orange groves in Anaheim, California. Due to counterfeit invitations, thousands showed up and the opening did not go well. Food and drink ran out, and the steamboat nearly capsized from too many passengers.

- On July 12, 1979, disco music died at Chicago's Comiskey Park when a "Disco Demolition" night is held. Organizers grossly underestimated the number of fans who would want to blow up their disco records: a sellout crowd inside the stadium and 40,000 outside who stormed the field and lit bonfires on the diamond.

A Message From The Quincy Fire Department: Fireworks Illegal In Massachusetts; Leave Them To The Professionals

By QUINCY FIRE DEPARTMENT

Once again it is time to celebrate our great nation's independence. When we think of the 4th of July, one of the first thoughts that come to mind are fireworks! John Adams said it himself in a letter he wrote to Abigail after the Continental Congress voted in favor of independence in Philadelphia. "Illuminations from one end of this continent to the other from this time forward forever more."

This belief has maintained tradition ever since. However, it must be conducted by professionals. Fireworks are not only dangerous; they are also illegal in Massachusetts for anyone without a professional license. The week of July 4th is one of the busiest times of the year for firefighters.

The following are some facts from a report called "Fireworks Fire and Injuries." According to Ahrens, M. NFPA (2020): "An estimated 19,500 fires started by fireworks were reported to local US fire departments in 2018. These fires caused 5 civilian deaths, 46 civilian injuries, and $105 million in direct property damage."

Based on 2014-2018 annual averages:

- Brush, grass, or forest fires accounted for three of every five (59 percent) of fireworks fires.
- Only 9 percent of the fireworks fires were structure fires; but, these incidents accounted for almost all of the fire deaths, three-quarters (74 percent) of the fire injuries, and 45 percent of the fire property damage.

MADD: Keep July 4th Celebrations Safe, Never Drive Impaired By Alcohol, Other Drugs

Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) urges everyone to celebrate safely by planning ahead, and designating a non-drinking, unimpaired driver during the long Fourth of July holiday weekend.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), 38% of all motor vehicle deaths during the 2019 July 4th holiday were alcohol related. From 2015 to 2019, 512 drivers who were killed during the July 4th holiday had a blood alcohol content of .08 or above.

The holiday falls on a Sunday this year, making it a long weekend for government employees and many businesses that close on Monday in observance of the federal holiday.

"MADD is especially concerned anytime one of the holidays that are known for gatherings and celebrating with alcohol fall on a weekend. We want those gatherings to be fun, but we also want to make sure everyone gets home in one piece," said MADD New England Executive Director, Bob Garguilo.

Over the July 4th holiday period in 2019 (6 p.m. July 3 - 5:59 a.m. July 8), nighttime was especially dangerous on America's roads. According to NHTSA, almost 4 out of 5 (79%) fatal traffic crashes occurred between 6 p.m.-5:59 a.m. during the five-day period.

Alcohol use continues to be the leading known contributing factor in recreational boating deaths in the United States. In 2019, when the primary cause is known, alcohol use was listed as the leading factor in 23% of recreational boating deaths. In addition, the 2020 Operation Dry Water campaign from July 3 to July 5 involved 620 agencies that made 625 impaired boating arrests, issued 8,666 citations and 28,659 safety warnings, according to the National Association of State Boating Law Administrators.

"Whether celebrations are on land or on the water this July 4th weekend, it's so important that if you drink, don't drive," Garguilo said. "As the nation celebrates our independence and our return to normal activities, we want everyone to stay safe and make great memories with their family and friends."

According to NHTSA:

- More than one-quarter (28 percent) of fires started by fireworks in 2014-2018 were reported on the Fourth of July.

- The Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) estimates that 9,100 consumer fireworks-related injuries were seen in US hospital emergency departments in 2018. Children ages 10-14 had the highest rate of fireworks injury, with more than one-third (36%) of the victims of fireworks injuries under age 15.

- Burns accounted for 44 percent of the fireworks-related injuries seen in the month around July 4th."

Numbers do not lie when evaluating the risk verse reward in dealing with unlicensed/unsupervised fireworks. Even the assumed harmless sparkler, which is usually given to a child after it has been lit to run around the backyard of a cookout, can have drastic measures. Sparklers burn at 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit and are responsible for approximately one-quarter of emergency room fireworks injuries. Improperly disposed sparklers can also be the cause and origin for house fires after being discarded in a dry mulch bed next to a house.

The slightest bit of wind will accelerate a smoldering mulch fire making it larger and spreading to the house.

With COVID-19 restrictions being lifted and more of us wanting to make up for last year's lack of celebrating due to quarantine, please do it responsible, safe, and leave fireworks to the professionals.

- In 2019, 515 people died in motor vehicle crashes over the July 4th holiday period (6 p.m. July 3 - 5:59 a.m. July 8, 2019). 38% (198) of those fatalities occurred in alcohol-impaired-driving crashes.

- From 2015 to 2019, there were 1,339 drivers killed in motor vehicle traffic crashes over the 4th of July holiday period. 38% (512) of the drivers killed were alcohol-impaired (BAC of .08+).

- During the 2019 July 4th holiday period, 69% of those who died in alcohol-impaired crashes were in a crash involving at least one driver or motorcycle operator with a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) at or above .15.

- Approximately one-third of all traffic crash fatalities in the United States involve drunk drivers (with blood alcohol concentrations [BACs] at or above .08). In 2019, there were 10,142 people killed in drunk-driving crashes.

- Nationally, it is illegal to drive with a BAC of .08 or higher, except in Utah, where the limit is .05 BAC.

- Although it's illegal to drive when impaired by alcohol, in 2019, one person was killed every 52 minutes in a drunk driving crash on our nation's roads.

- Men are more likely than women to be driving drunk when involved in fatal crashes. In 2019, 21% of males were drunk, compared to 14% of females.

- Of the traffic fatalities in 2019 among children 14 and younger, 19% (204) occurred in alcohol-impaired-driving crashes.

- Among the 10,142 alcohol-impaired-driving fatalities in 2019, 68% (6,872) were in crashes in which at least one driver had a BAC of .15 or higher.

- In 2019, motorcycle riders involved in fatal crashes had higher percentages of alcohol impairment than any other type of motor vehicle driver (29% for motorcycle riders, compared to drivers of passenger cars (20%), light trucks (19%), and large trucks (2%).

- Nighttime is a particularly dangerous time to be on the roads: The rate of alcohol impairment among drivers involved in fatal crashes in 2019 was 3.3 times higher at night than during the day.

Two Downtown Roads Formally Named For Quincy Generals

By SCOTT JACKSON

Two four-star generals who were raised in Quincy will have streets in Quincy Center named in their honor.

City councillors on June 21 unanimously approved Mayor Thomas Koch's request to call the new streets General Joseph F. Dunford Drive and General James C. McConville Way.

Both streets are located in the vicinity of the former Ross Lot in Quincy Center.

General Joseph F. Dunford Drive will run east to west from Burgin Parkway to the new city-owned garage located on the former Hancock Lot. It will start on the new Generals Bridge and will include the road formerly known as Cliveden Street.

General James C. McConville Way will run north to south through the former Ross Lot from Hannon Parkway to Granite Street.

It includes the former Ross Way.

Dunford served as the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the highest ranking military officer in the US Armed Forces, from 2015 to 2019. He was previously the commandant of the US Marine Corps and had been the commander of the International Security Assistance Force in Afghanistan prior to that. Dunford commanded the 5th Marine Regiment during the invasion of Iraq.

McConville is currently the chief of staff of the US Army, a position he has held since 2019. He previously served as the Army's vice chief of staff and deputy chief of staff for personnel. McConville was formerly the commander of the 101st Airborne Division.

Dunford and McConville are among the generals the city will honor with the new

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A postcard reproduction of "Quincy's Civic Center in 2025," a vision 100 years into the future as presented 96 years ago by the Quincy City Planning Board to Mayor Perley Barbour in 1925. It was the board's contribution to the history of the City's Tercentenary (300th) Celebration that year. This bird's eye view is looking east with the First Parish Church in the center. The foresighted vision was a precursor to today's Hancock-Adams Green except the old City Hall is missing. It was planned to replace it with a new City Hall on the corner of Spear and Coddington Streets as can be seen here. That never happened, of course, and that is now the site of the Bethany Church, which was then located at the lower right, now the site of the Bank of America building at 1400 Hancock St. The large building in the lower right was the then new Mount Wollaston Bank building, now the site of the Stop and Shop headquarters. Foster Street and Cottage Avenue as shown here on the upper right were planned to be widened and extended to become an east-west connector between Hancock and Washington Streets and beyond to the new Southern Artery just being built, diverting traffic from the Center. It was the beginnings of an idea finally coming to fruition with today's Mayor Walter J. Hannon Parkway just a little further to the right of this view. In the distance, beyond all the open space and pedestrian friendly greenways, there was envisioned a large coliseum style stadium with a running track on Faxon Field next to the high school that was also just built. The Adams Academy building is on the far upper left. Many other of today's landmarks are also discernible. Note the steam-powered railroad train approaching the side-by-side Quincy Center stations; diesel at the time had only limited use. But, the two cast-iron pedestrian overpasses were forerunners to those that are now in Las Vegas.

Special Election For Cerasoli Rep. Seat

A special election will be called in October to fill the vacancy created when Robert Cerasoli was named the state's new Inspector General.

Cerasoli, 43, Quincy Democrat, who represented the Third Norfolk District for 18 years, was unanimously selected Inspector General from 109 applicants by Gov. William Weld, Attorney General Scott Harshbarger and Auditor Joseph DeNucci.

He replaces Joseph Barresi who retired last week after 10 years in office. State law limits the term to two five-year terms.

Based on the number of inquiries regarding Cerasoli's seat since his appointment, City Clerk John M. Gillis said the special election should generate considerable interest in Quincy and Weymouth.

Some names mentioned include Councillor Daniel Raymond, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia; Bruce Tobin, brother of Rep. Steve Tobin; and School Committee Member Ron Mariano.

(Editor's note: Ron Mariano won and still holds the seat. Today, he is the speaker of the House of Representatives.)

Pastor Remembers Church Deacon Bob Boussy

Quincy recently lost a colorful character who loved Quincy and I lost a dear friend with the passing of Bob Boussy.

While many viewed him as a perennial candidate for political office and somewhat of a comedian, there was another side to Bob that I knew and few saw. He was a man of faith who had a genuine burden for the dispossessed and broken.

Each Monday for nearly 20 years Bob and I led a worship service at a Long Term Care Facility for head injured people in Middleboro. Much to the delight and uproarious laughter of the residents, Bob would announce our arrival with, "OK everybody, Pastor Jack and Captain Bob have arrived, please, don't get up." Nearly every resident was wheelchair bound.

Bob Boussy was one of my deacons while I was pastor of Union Congregational Church in Wollaston and he was one of my best. According to the Bible the primary role of the Deacon is to serve the poor and needy. No one did that better than Bob Boussy. "Well done Good and Faithful Servant, enter into the joy of your Lord." (Matthew 25:21).

Agrees Pandemic Funds Should Not Be Spent On College

I wholeheartedly agree with Gene Lee's letter concerning "Mayor Koch's Pet Project."

I can't imagine he would think it okay to use pandemic funds to purchase land for Quincy College to build a new campus! Didn't we, the voters, let our councillors know that we were not in favor of his last attempt to purchase the Munroe Building for Quincy College so they voted against it for us?

These funds would be better used, as Mr. Lee said, for food insecurity, medical care, the elderly, the disabled, the isolated. Surely they are more in need of assistance than Quincy College!

Please Mr. Mayor, walk a mile in their shoes.

MPL Virtual Events, In-Person Tai Chi Events In July

By JEAN HLADY
Head of Adult Services/Reference
Milton Public Library

During the month of July, the Milton Public Library is offering a variety of fun virtual events for adults via Zoom, plus a few in-person Tai Chi events.

On Tuesday, July 6 at 7 p.m., registered dietician, certified personal trainer, and wellness expert Kathy Jordan will give a one-hour talk via Zoom called "Nutrition and Lifestyle Changes that Last." She will challenge, inspire, motivate and support you through your own journey to finally end the struggle with your weight and feel more healthy. Her classes cover calories and the role of protein, carbohydrates, fats and hydration, vitamins, minerals, and antioxidants in one's diet.

If you would like some advice about your diet, exercise and options going forward to become the best version you can be, please attend this talk with us. Advance registration is required at the Milton Public Library website. This program is part of "Milton Moves," a year-long initiative of the MPL for all ages focused on fitness, wellness and healthy eating.

There will be four meetings this month of an in-person program called "Intergenerational Tai Chi, ages 10 to adult" scheduled for 7 p.m. on these Thursdays: July 8, July 15, July 22 and July 29.

Always wondered about Tai Chi but didn't know where to start? Relaxed, easy postures and movements are used in this class to develop more awareness of your body and allow for a more balanced and continuous flow of energy. You will gain greater flexibility, improved balance (of body and mind), and a sense of body wisdom to help you move smoothly and easily. This is done through a series of slow, flowing exercises that combine movement and meditation, based on Chinese Martial Arts.

All levels are welcome, and ages 10 through adult are invited to attend, advance registration is required for each session and the classes will be held on the basketball court across from our programming partner, the Milton Council on Aging.

On Tuesday, July 13 starting at 6:30 p.m. (note start time) we are offering the first part of a virtual talk called "Photography Workshop: Part One - Digital Photography Essentials" with professional photographer and instructor Nick DePasquale. (There will be a second part about photography held on Tuesday, Aug. 10 as well.)

In this Zoom program which runs for 1.5 hours, the presenter will help us understand our camera, to understand exposure and why it's important to know how to shoot in manual exposure, to be able to focus and use Depth of Field, how to see like a photographer, and to learn the elements of visual design and composition. Nick has a lifelong passion for photography and he has worked for several magazines, for fundraising events and more, and his photos have been published in print and online regularly. Advance registration for each program date is required at our website and attendance is limited.

Author Ted Reinstein will be back on Tuesday, July 20 at 7 p.m. via Zoom with an online talk called: "Armchair Travel: The New Normal New England Road Trip." Author of three books about New England and a longtime Chronicle reporter, Ted is your tour guide as you go from Maine to Rhode Island, Mount Washington to Mount Mansfield, and Berkshire foliage to Fenway Park.

But Ted's 20-plus years of reporting and telling stories from all over New England means this is not your average bus tour! Prepare to meet colorful characters who've done the darndest things, learn odd facts about familiar places, and of course - this being a Ted talk - expect to visit at least a few fabulous classic diners. Question and answer will follow the program and advance registration is required. Please come along for a virtual ride with a very entertaining speaker!

PHOTOGRAPHER NICK DePasquale (shown here with his wife) will lead a virtual talk on "Digital Photography Essentials" Tuesday, July 13 at 6:30 p.m. The workshop is part of the virtual programs offered by the Milton Public Library during July.

Then join us on Tuesday, July 27 at 6:30 p.m. (note start time) for: "Learn to Dance via Zoom: Salsa." This is the first part of a three-part instructional workshop on various dance styles with two teachers from Dance Caliente in Medford. Each session runs for 1 1/2 hours until 8 p.m. and the program is interactive via Zoom so participants can ask questions as they learn. (The second and third classes will be held in September (West Coast Swing) and November (Tango)).

No prior experience is necessary and this first virtual class does not require a partner.

Salsa is an energetic dance with lots of freedom in the hips and ribs, adding a playful sensuality to each move. This online class will give you a taste of two common and exciting styles of salsa dance found in every dance club around the world. The "country" dance style (Cumbia/Salsa) moves from side to side, rotates in a curve and leads to interesting pivot turns, cuddles, wrap-arounds, and more. The "big city" dance style (Puerto Rican-Cuban Salsa) moves in a slot, makes use of the crossbody lead, has many turns, and a long list of impressive moves.

We hope you will check out this fun and firming dance series where the instructors feel mixing laughter with a little sweat are essential components of a great learning experience! We hope to see you there, and please sign up in advance. This program is part of "Milton Moves," a year-long initiative of the MPL for all ages focused on fitness, wellness and healthy eating.

All of these events are kindly sponsored by the Friends of the Milton Public Library, and the dance class is sup-

Movie Reviews: 'The Hitman's Wife's Bodyguard,' 'Peter Rabbit 2,' 'Cruella'

By BOB GARVER

"The Hitman's Wife's Bodyguard," last weekend's #1 movie, was a colossal waste of my time. In the interest of not wasting too much of your time with my complaining, I've decided to chop down that review and offer two alternatives that are much more deserving of your time, though they will never get a weekend to call their own. With that in mind, I'll get the big dud out of the way first...

"The Hitman's Wife's Bodyguard"

This movie is a poor excuse to have Ryan Reynolds, Samuel L. Jackson, and Salma Hayek cursing at each other for 99 minutes. That might sound like fun given the talent involved, but trust me, it gets old fast.

Reynolds is especially grating as a wannabe bodyguard who's not particularly good at anything. In 2017's "The Hit-man's Bodyguard," he was at least competent enough to be a decent bodyguard except for when he was getting foiled by Jackson's hitman. Here it's hard to see why he was ever allowed to be a bodyguard in the first place.

The whole thing is set against the backdrop of an action movie so hacky it's on par with those direct-to-VOD movies I was reviewing when theaters were closed last summer. These actors could have been doing much better projects, and I weep for what we might have had instead of this dreck.

Grade: D

Rated R for strong bloody violence throughout, pervasive language, and some sexual content. Its running time is 99 minutes.

"Peter Rabbit 2: The Runaway"

I watched 2018's "Peter Rabbit" in preparation for this sequel, and I'm glad I did. Both movies have a nice twisted sense of humor, which isn't to say that they're so cynical that they're obnoxious.

This movie sees Peter (James Corden) and his family turned into storybook characters by their adoptive human parents (Rose Byrne and Domhnall Gleeson). Peter likes his newfound celebrity until he learns that he's seen as a bully and a villain. This makes him want to ditch his new life entirely and pull food heists along his late father's old thieving crew. But if he's turning to a life of crime, doesn't that make him the bad seed that everyone thinks he is?

Peter's identity crisis isn't particularly compelling (the need to learn a lesson is overpowering), but the movie hits the right notes in the humor and sweetness departments.

Squantum Road Race Set For July 3

The Squantum Road Race, a tradition held annually as part of the 4th of July festivities in Squantum, will be held Saturday, July 3rd.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Squantum Fire Station located at 50 Huckins Ave., North Quincy. The race will kick off at 10 a.m.

Registration is $20 for adults, and kids age 10 and under run for free.

State Rep. Bruce Ayers, who has sponsored the Squantum Road Race for over 20 years, said he's excited for the race to be held once again after it was canceled in 2020 due to the CO-VID-19 pandemic.

"It's a great community event that has become a real Squantum tradition," Ayers said. "I'm looking forward to seeing all the families and runners who come out to support the road race, which is run in memory of longtime Squantum community activist Frank Buckley."

T-shirts will be provided as supplies last, and trophies will be presented to first and second place winners in each age category. Medals will be presented to every child who runs. All proceeds go to the Squantum 4th of July Parade.

How To Plan A Backyard Vacation

Here are some tips for planning a backyard vacation:

Make a backyard staycation plan. Put together a gentle schedule with a mixture of activities that your family will enjoy like dining, camping and games. Add a theme for the week, day or evening. A luau theme can be carried through with costumes, food and activities. A sports theme can have everyone in team jerseys and doing sports activities. Use creative names for meals and activities to spice things up. Even if you don't have a pool, children's water play misters or sprinklers can help everyone cool off in the backyard (provided your area is not under drought conditions).

Map where activities will occur in the yard. A lawn area may be the site of soccer, bocce ball or croquet, but it can also double as an overnight camping zone for the kids in a family tent. The fire pit can be used for roasting hot dogs for lunch or s'mores at night. Crafts, potting plants, and eating can happen at a picnic or dining table.

Assess what you have and consider their creative uses. Lounge chairs, sports and play equipment can be used for their original purposes, but they can also become part of an amazing obstacle course. The wheelbarrow used for gardening and yard work can become part of a family field day. The playset your children adore can become a fun breakfast spot or reading area.

TIPS FOR a backyard vacation include identify zones for different activities and learning about backyard wildlife and nature. Courtesy Photo

Spruce up your yard. Mow the lawn and trim the bushes. Tidy overgrown areas. Add flowering plants and rearrange planters for visual appeal. Put delicate flowers in pots and out of the way of foot traffic. Now may be the time to add a picnic table, a badminton net or croquet course, planters, patio, grill, fire pit, or pergola to your backyard.

Organize for fun. Identify zones for different activities. Dining, lounging and reading may be best in shady spots. Sports, family yard games and tossing a ball to your dog may be better on a lawn that can handle rough and tumble play. Hammocks, lawn chairs, swings, picnic blankets and air mattresses can all provide a place for people to sit down and cool off.

Use the opportunity to learn about backyard wildlife and nature. Ask kids to take an inventory of the many birds, butterflies and other wildlife they see, looking up their species and background. Put up a bird feeder or plant a butterfly garden, as well as potted flowering plants to support birds and pollinators. Add wind chimes, rain collectors, or backyard thermometers and wind gauges to help kids observe science in action. (Visit TurfMutt.com for a variety of backyard lesson plans that are free and STEM-aligned.)

Design new games incorporating your green space. Hold a nature scavenger hunt that's both fun, educational and tests your family's observational skills. Create an outdoor movie theatre by bringing laptops outside or use a projector to show films on a sheet or screen that is hung outside.

Build anticipation. Talk about your backyard staycation in advance with your family and review your plans. Count down the days to build excitement about spending time together in your family yard.

Movie Reviews

Kids finally have a decent movie to see in theaters besides "Raya and the Last Dragon."

Grade: B

Rated PG for some rude humor and action. Its running time is 99 minutes.

"Cruella"

In the tradition of "Maleficent" comes Disney's latest recontextualization of a classic villain. How did mischievous-but-well-meaning street urchin Estella (Emma Stone) become the crazed fashion mogul Cruella de Vil, a character so contemptible she wanted to turn 101 dalmatians into fur coats?

The answer is she doesn't. Disney would never let a protagonist become that unlikeable, so the movie presents an all-around nicer version of the character that happens to look kind of like Cruella and say "darling" like Cruella, but isn't really Cruella. But all is not lost. While this movie fails as a Cruella origin story, it's actually pretty good as a con artist movie.

Cruella is out to unseat The Baroness (Emma Thompson) as the head of the London fashion world. She and her cohorts Jasper (Joel Fry) and Horace (Paul Walter Hauser, a great under-the-radar talent) and their loyal dogs pull all sorts of fun pranks and heists in the name of getting Cruella ahead. The movie is a delight until it gets bogged down in exposition that I suppose was inevitable. But the movie is still filled with well-attended costumes, sets, and gags, so I give it a recommendation.

Grade: B-

Rated PG-13 for some violence and thematic elements (though I can't think of anything in this movie that warrants a PG-13 rating instead of PG). Its running time is 134 minutes.

47 Million Americans Traveling This Holiday Weekend

AAA: Travel Expected To Increase 40% Compared To Last July 4

More than 47.7 million Americans will take to the nation's roadways and skies this Independence Day (July 1-5), as travel volumes are expected to nearly fully recover to pre-pandemic levels.

In fact, this will be the second-highest Independence Day travel volume on record, trailing only 2019. This represents an increase of nearly 40% compared to last year, when total travel fell to 34.2 million. Overall, just 2.5% fewer Americans are expected to travel this year compared to Independence Day in 2019.

Massachusetts residents will be joining the travel parade, with more than 1.3 million planning Fourth of July trips, up from 964,000 in 2020. Of that total, close to 1.2 million will drive, compared to 920,000 last year.

INRIX, in collaboration with AAA, predicts drivers will experience the worst congestion heading into the holiday weekend as commuters leave work early and mix with holiday travelers, coupled with the return trip on Monday mid-day. Boston drivers could experience up to three times the usual volume on some roadways Thursday and Friday afternoons before the holiday.

While all modes of travel will see increased demand this Independence Day, road trips continue to dominate this summer. Despite the highest gas prices in seven years, more than 91% of holiday travel will be by car. An expected 43.6 million Americans will drive to their destinations, the highest on record for this holiday and 5% more than the previous record set in 2019. With 3.5 million people planning to fly, air travel volumes this Independence Day will reach 90% of pre-pandemic levels, and increase 164% compared to last year.

"Travel is in full swing this summer, as Americans eagerly return to travel experiences they've deferred for the last year-and-a-half," said Mary Maguire, director, Public and Government Affairs, AAA Northeast. "We saw strong demand for travel around Memorial Day and the kick-off of summer, and all indications now point to a busy Independence Day coming up."

Another 620,000 Americans are expected to travel by other modes this Independence Day, an increase of over 72% compared to last year, but 83% lower than in 2019. This includes travel by bus and train, and also the return of cruising. Cruise lines have announced limited sailings resuming from U.S. ports beginning in late June. For those who make the personal decision to take a cruise, AAA reminds them that a travel agent can help advise on cancellation policies, what you can expect on your cruise, and travel insurance options to help protect your health and travel investment before and during your vacation.

Top Destinations & Resources to Plan Trip

AAA Travel booking data also indicate a strong travel recovery for summer. Theme parks in Orlando and southern California, as well as destinations including Denver, Las Vegas and Seattle are topping the list of Independence Day destinations this year.

Top Independence Day Travel Destinations:

1. Orlando, FL
2. Anaheim, CA
3. Denver, CO
4. Las Vegas, NV

5. Seattle, WA
6. Chicago, IL
7. New York, NY
8. Atlanta, GA
9. Boston, MA
10. Kahului, Maui, HI

*Based on AAA Travel advance air and tour bookings, July 1-5, 2021

Travelers: Prepare for Higher Prices

While AAA found average airfares have declined 2% compared to last Independence Day, travelers can expect to find higher prices for hotels and car rentals as demand climbs. Mid-range hotel rates have increased between 32% and 35%, with average nightly rates ranging between $156 and $398 for AAA Two Diamond and AAA Three Diamond hotels, respectively.

Daily car rental rates have increased 86% compared to last Independence Day, topping out at $166. Consumers have experienced high costs and limited availability of rental cars in some markets, due to the chip shortage impacting auto manufacturers. This production delay has presented a domino effect as rental car companies work to increase their inventory of new vehicles in time to meet the increased demand for domestic road travel.

The 43.6 million Americans expected to travel by car this Independence Day can expect gas prices to be the most expensive since 2014 with the national average likely to remain above $3 per gallon.

More Tips for Travelers

While many aspects of daily life start to return closer to a pre-pandemic normal, AAA cautions that the travel landscape has changed. Remember to exercise caution while traveling, and consider working with a travel agent to plan your trip. They can help if you need to make any last-minute changes to travel plans, explore travel insurance options and help you plan a vacation that meets your needs and comfort-level this summer.

Although the CDC advises that fully vaccinated people can travel domestically at low risk to themselves, it's important to keep in mind that some local and state travel restrictions may still remain in place. Travelers can refer to AAA's COVID-19 Travel Restrictions Map and TripTik.AAA.com for the latest information to help plan their trip.

For travelers who are not vaccinated but choose to travel, CDC recommends that you practice social distancing, wear a mask, wash your hands and get tested for COVID-19 before and after travel.

Regardless of vaccination status, masks are required on planes, buses, trains, and other forms of public transportation traveling into, within, or out of the United States and in U.S. transportation hubs such as airports and stations.

Make Sure Your Car Is Road Trip-Ready

Before hitting the road, AAA reminds motorists to plan their route in advance and ensure their vehicle is ready, to help avoid a breakdown along the way. AAA expects to rescue more than 460,000 Americans at the roadside this Independence Day weekend.

AAA makes it easy to request assistance—by phone or text (1-800-AAA-HELP), app or online—and members can track the service technician's progress en route to their vehicle. Also, don't leave home without an emergency roadside kit and continue to pack extra snacks or meals as well as cleaning supplies, including disinfecting wipes.

Regardless of how you plan to get to your destination, AAA advises travelers to seek the advice of a knowledgeable travel agent to help plan their trips this Independence Day. To get started and to learn more, visit AAA.com/Travel.

Meringue Tarts

By MARIE

There is something about Meringue - it is such a delicious, tasty sweet that I enjoy no matter how it is used from pies, cookies and toppings for a number of desserts.

Today's recipe for Meringue Tarts is one up on all of the others - and it can either be made into one meringue tart or 6 individual shells. This meringue tart recipe is the best that I have ever tasted and with only four ingredients. It takes no time to make this delicious tart that melts in your mouth!! After they are done you fill it with ice cream - wow! I found this recipe in an old cook book so it has been around for a while.

Recipe and Ingredients

- 3 egg whites
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1 cup of sugar
- Preheat oven to 275 degrees
- Have egg whites at room temperature

Beat egg whites and then add vanilla, cream of tartar and a dash of salt. Beat to soft peaks.

Gradually add the sugar beating until very stiff peaks form (meringue will be glossy).

Cover baking sheet with parchment paper.

If you are going to make one tart use an 8-inch round cake pan as a guide draw a circle on the paper. Spread meringue over the circle.

If you are going to make 6 shells, make a circle for each serving of meringue and use the back of a teaspoon making the bottoms about 1 inch thick and 1 and ¾ inches high.

Bake at 275-degree oven for 1 hour.

Turn off heat and let dry in oven with door closed for at least 2 hours.

When done, fill with ice cream and sauce or fresh fruit.

Now in the individual the steps are similar; on a cookie sheet draw 6 circles 3 and 1/2 inches in diameter.

Spread each with about 3 tablespoons of meringue, using the back of spoon shape into shells forming a hollow in the center.

Bake at 275-degree oven for 1 hour and repeat above steps except let dry in oven for 1 hour instead of 2 hours.

Red, White & Blue Potato Salad

By SUZIE

How about some red, white, and blue potato salad?

Blue/purple hued potatoes look quite "exotic" for sure, but taste pretty much like regular potatoes. These colorful potatoes pack a big nutritional punch by providing carotenoids, and antioxidants like "anthocyanin" that is also found in berries and pomegranates.

This potato is also very resistant to disease and are also able to withstand harsh conditions, which makes it a good environmental choice as well! Here is a delicious and simple potato salad recipe. ENJOY!

2 pounds baby potatoes, a mix of white and blue (or purple)

- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 4 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 1/2-1 tsp Sea salt (I love Redmonds Real Salt)

Freshly ground pepper to taste
3/4 cup chopped roasted red peppers, rinsed

- 5 scallions, thinly sliced
- 1 large clove of garlic, minced
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley

1. Place potatoes in a large saucepan or Dutch oven and cover with salted water. Bring to a boil and cook until tender, about 15 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water. Transfer to a cutting board. Let cool for 20 minutes.

2. Whisk lemon juice, oil, salt and pepper and garlic in a large bowl. Cut the potatoes in half, add to the bowl and toss to coat.

3. Just before serving, add peppers, scallions and parsley to the salad and toss gently.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Can I Get A Higher Benefit Now Because I'm Older?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

National Social Security Advisor

At the AMAC Foundation, The Non-Profit Arm Of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I started getting Social Security at age 62 and I am now 77. Can I get a higher benefit now that I'm older? Signed: Needy Senior

Dear Needy Senior: Probably not. When you first start collecting your Social Security retirement benefits (e.g., at age 62 or any other age) your SS benefit amount is permanently established and will change thereafter only if:

- A Cost-of-Living Adjustment (COLA) is granted (which is usually done annually, starting with your payment in January of each year). There have only been 3 years in the last four decades that a COLA increase didn't automatically occur. This year's COLA increase was 1.3%.

- You later became eligible for a higher spousal benefit because your husband started collecting benefits after you first claimed, and your benefit amount at your full retirement age (FRA) was less than 50% of your husband's FRA benefit amount.

- You later became eligible for a higher survivor benefit because your husband passed away and his Social Security benefit was more than you were receiving (you would need to apply separately for your survivor benefit).

- You had later earnings which were higher than any of the 35 years over your lifetime used to originally compute your benefit when you first applied. Past years earnings are adjusted for inflation, so original earnings amounts in prior years are increased to today's dollar value to see if your recent earnings are higher.

If you are working, Social Security monitors your earnings (and your contributions through payroll taxes) every year to see if you are due a benefit increase and, if appropriate, it is automatically given. COLA increases are also automatically given effective with each December's benefit (paid in January) if such an increase is appropriate due to inflation as measured by the national Consumer Price Index. So, the only other possible way your current benefit could be increased now is if 1) you didn't claim a spousal benefit when you were eligible and you are still eligible because your husband is still living, or, 2) your husband is now deceased, and you didn't apply for a higher survivor benefit you were entitled to when he died. If either of those are true, then you should contact Social Security to request your higher benefit.

You do not, however, get a benefit increase simply because you are now older than you were when you first claimed Social Security. COLA will slightly increase your benefit automatically most years, but unless one or more of the other conditions above apply, your benefits won't change further as you age.

Baker-Polito File Legislation To Make August, September Sales Tax Holiday Months

The Baker-Polito Administration has filed legislation to establish a Sales Tax Holiday for the months of August and September. This plan aims to support Main Street businesses and local economies and promote economic growth and opportunity as the Commonwealth continues to recover from the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic.

State tax revenues for Fiscal Year 2021 (FY21) continue to significantly exceed projections, with revenues to date 14.9% above benchmark. Strong revenues across the board have allowed the Commonwealth to grow the size of the Stabilization Fund and be poised to end the fiscal year with a significant surplus for the FY21 budget. As a result, the Administration is proposing to support the Commonwealth's taxpayers and downtown economies by designating the entire months of August and September as sales tax-free.

"A two-month sales tax holiday will provide a boost to Massachusetts' taxpayers and Main Street economies as we continue to recover from COVID-19," Gov. Charlie Baker said. "Massachusetts' economic recovery is off to a good start, but it's crucial that the Commonwealth takes action now to spur more economic activity in communities and support taxpayers. Thanks to stronger than expected tax revenues, the Commonwealth has managed to grow the Rainy Day Fund to a balance higher than it was at the beginning of the pandemic, and we can also afford to return these tax dollars to our residents and small businesses."

"We recognize that many residents, families, and small businesses continue to face challenges related to the COVID-19 pandemic," said Lt. Governor Karyn Polito. "As a result of the Commonwealth's strong revenue performance, we are proposing to extend the annual sales tax-free weekend to two months to help support small and local businesses throughout Massachusetts and power our economy forward."

Through May 2021, FY21 tax revenues collections are $3.938 billion or 14.9% more than the year-to-date benchmark. Additionally, Massachusetts has been awarded significant federal resources since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, including Coronavirus Relief Fund dollars through the CARES Act which have helped reduce pressure on the operating budget.

"We are proud to offer this proposal to keep money in the hands of taxpayers and promote economic development amidst Massachusetts' recovery from the COVID-19 public health emergency," said Secretary of Administration and Finance Michael J. Heffernan. "These two sales tax-free months would be a great opportunity for consumers throughout local neighborhoods to help support small and Main Street businesses and grow our economy."

Tax revenues have continued to come in at higher-than-expected levels. The Department of Revenue June 22 certified to the Comptroller that a total of $2.3 billion in capital gains tax revenue has so far been collected in FY21. This figure is $947 million higher than the FY21 capital gains tax collections threshold, meaning that under state law, $852 million is transferred to the Commonwealth's Stabilization Fund. Therefore, the Stabilization Fund balance will now stand at approximately $4.4 billion, which is higher than it was at the beginning of the pandemic and nearly quadruple the balance when the Administration took office in 2015.

"A two month sales tax holiday is a smart, exciting, and progressive economic incentive that will benefit our small businesses and our consumers just when they need it," said Retailers of Massachusetts Association President Jon Hurst. "Consumers represent 70% of our economy, and it is important that we encourage them to invest in our Main Streets, small businesses and communities. And for our lower income families, this tax cut is all about temporarily suspending the most regressive tax on the books, just as their children are heading back to school. Retailers and small businesses across the Commonwealth thank the Baker-Polito Administration in proposing this important economic growth incentive, and urge the Legislature to pass it into law."

If enacted, this proposal would be an expansion of the annual sales tax-free weekend, which the Administration has also officially designating as Aug. 14-15. In 2018, Gov. Baker signed legislation that makes the annual sales tax holiday permanent.

Happy 4th of July week everyone! Here is some important information we wanted to share for this week's upcoming events....

FIREWORKS:

As a reminder, Massachusetts General Law Chapter 148, s39, makes it illegal for private citizens to use, possess, or sell fireworks in Massachusetts, or to purchase them legally elsewhere and then transport them into the state. Those found in possession of fireworks may receive a fine up to $100, however, you may also be subject to arrest based on city ordinance violations (disturbing the peace, being in the park after dark, etc). Please leave the fireworks to the professionals!

Wednesday, July 3rd:

There will be no fireworks off of Wessagusset Beach this year. MBTA bus service to Houghs Neck will run as scheduled. Edgewater Drive will be closed from Darrow Street to Rock Island Road from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. for the annual bonfire. This is a family-friendly event and public consumption of alcohol is prohibited.

Squantum Road Race 10 a.m.: Streets throughout Squantum will be closed temporarily while the runners proceed along the course. Please use extra care if driving in the Squantum neighborhood at that time.

Thursday, July 4th:

Squantum 4th of July Parade 10 a.m.: Begins at the First Church of Squantum and ends at the Squantum School. (The event is contained within the Squantum area so we do not anticipate any impact on local traffic outside of that area)

Merrymount 4th of July Parade 1 p.m.: Begins at Merrymount School and ends at Merrymount Beach. Sponsored by the Merrymount Association, this parade engages the whole neighborhood with many streets making their own floats. TRAFFIC ALERT: The parade route crosses Quincy Shore Drive at Samoset Avenue, then again at Squanto Road. Expect traffic delays in the area.

of you may be hosting July 4th parties at your home. Your guests will be able to access the area and park, but parking will be VERY limited. We will allow your guests to park on the street (if spots are available) but they must adhere to the NO PARKING signs. We encourage you to use any off-street parking available: your driveway, a neighbor's driveway (with permission of course!), etc. There will be detail officers stationed at the intersection of Washington Street and Washington Court should you have any issues or concerns.

We would like to remind our citizens, and those that visit our City over the holiday weekend, that there is no public consumption of alcohol in the street, on the beaches, etc. Due to several events occurring, some streets may have been posted TEMPORARY NO PARKING. Please pay close attention as vehicles will be towed. Safety is everyone's responsibility. If you see something that you think is suspicious, please let us know. Officers will be stationed at all scheduled events. Please approach us or contact our dispatch at 617.479.1212 or 911 in an emergency. Be respectful of each other, follow the parking rules, and remember you are responsible for those that attend gatherings at your home/property.

POOL SAFETY

Pool parties are a great way for kids to cool off, celebrate, and get out some extra energy during the warmer months. However, being in the water comes with some risk. Drowning is the fifth leading cause of unintentional injury death in the US and almost 39% of children who went to the Emergency Room for a drowning event were swimming in a new environment, such as a pool party.

According to Marisa Abbe, Ph.D., Manager of Injury Prevention at Children's Health, "Children often drown outside their own home, in a pool that is new to them. At an event like a family gathering or pool party, it could be easy to assume that someone else is watching the pool."

PETS SAFETY

Please keep your pets safe. More dogs go missing on July 4th than any other holiday. Fireworks are loud and frightening to many pets. Keep them secure in a quiet room during the displays. If your dog is outside, make sure your pet is wearing a collar with a clearly visible ID tag in the event they become lost. Never leave your pet in a parked car. On a warm day, temperatures inside a vehicle can rise rapidly to dangerous levels. Your pet may suffer irreversible organ damage or die.

Most importantly, please have a safe and fun holiday. If you will be drinking, please designate a sober driver or call a ride-share or cab.

Roads Formally Named For Quincy Generals

Generals Bridge and a nearby park, both of which are slated to open on Sept. 11.

Sixteen generals with Quincy ties who have served in the armed forces since the Revolutionary War will be honored in total. Seven of those generals, who have all served since World War II, will be honored with statues or busts.

Three four-star generals - Dunford, McConville and Gordon Sullivan - will have full-size statues dedicated in their honor. Sullivan served as the chief of staff of the US Army from 1991 to 1995.

Busts will be dedicated in honor of: Major General Francis McGinn of the Massachusetts National Guard; Ronald Rand, a retired Air Force brigadier general; the late Stephen Keefe, a major general in the Air Force; and the late Charles Sweeney, the pilot of the B-29 that dropped an atomic bomb on Nagasaki during World War II who later became a major general in the Massachusetts Air National Guard.

Koch has said all five living generals have been invited to speak at the Sept. 11 dedication ceremony and all are expected to do so.

Six On WPI Dean's List

Six students from Quincy have been named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at Worcester Polytechnic Institute in Worcester.

They are:

Timothy Goon, Class of 2022 majoring in computer science; Howard Zheng, Class of 2022, mechanical

Sen. Keenan Highlights Need To Connect Individuals In Housing Crisis To Financial Assistance

With financial hardship continuing to be a persistent side effect of the ongoing pandemic, Massachusetts renters and landlords are both being urged to pursue forms of financial relief currently available to them through the state government.

"Despite the glimmers of hope we've seen in recent weeks, the pandemic has continued to cause uncertainty and financial instability for Massachusetts renters and property owners," said Sen. John Keenan (D-Quincy), who serves as the Senate chairperson of the Joint Committee on Housing. "Based on conversations my office has had with advocates, landlords, and tenants, the greatest challenge we face is getting the available financial assistance into the hands of those who need it."

"Though the pandemic has waned in recent weeks and some sense of normalcy is slowly returning to the Commonwealth, we must continue to support and find ways to help those in need of housing and rental assistance," said state Rep. James Arciero (D-Westford), who serves as House chairperson of the Joint Committee on Housing. "There are many programs and resources readily available for those in need and to assist tenants, landlords and homeowners who are struggling financially to secure stable housing."

Last October, the Commonwealth ended its moratorium on COVID-related evictions and foreclosures, and since then has committed over $500 million to

Good Deeds: The Country Opens Up

By WILLIAM O'DONNELL
Norfolk County
Register of Deeds

It is not lost upon folks that America is opening up from various COVID-19 orders and restrictions as we celebrate the birth of the United States of America on July 4th. There have been four Presidents of the United States of America born in Norfolk County which was established by law in 1793. This fact has led to the designation of Norfolk

County as the "County of Presidents."

John Adams, the second President of the United States, who hailed from Norfolk County, once said about celebrating the birth of this great nation, "It will be celebrated... with pomp and parade... bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other."

It always amazed me when reading the above quotation that President Adams had the presence of mind and insight to essentially predict how the United States of America celebrates its birth as a nation all these years later. The celebration of our freedoms will take on a new meaning this July 4th holiday as we return to pre Coronavirus activities.

All the "little things" denied due to the Coronavirus pandemic will hopefully be savored and appreciated. Some of these "little things" may be running a road race, a cook out with family and friends, watching fireworks displayed in our local communities or enjoying the marching bands and floats of a July 4th parade.

The 35th President of the United States of America John F. Kennedy was born in the Norfolk County community of Brookline. President Kennedy spoke at Independence Hall in Philadelphia on July 4, 1962 stating, "For 186 years this doctrine of national independence has shaken the globe - and it remains the most powerful force anywhere in the world today. There are those struggling to eke out a bare existence in a barren land who have never heard of free enterprise, but who cherish the idea of independence. There are those who are grappling with overpowering problems of illiteracy and ill-health and who are ill-equipped to hold free elections. But they are determined to hold fast to their national independence."

The notion of independence was certainly challenged during the Coronavirus pandemic. Yet throughout this trying period as one who is tasked with leading the Registry of Deeds I saw Registry employees rise above difficulties and obstacles while demonstrating a commitment to excellence. Under trying circumstances with restrictions to one's notion of independence and freedoms the employees of the Registry of Deeds came to work throughout the pandemic to keep the real estate sector of our local economy viable.

The Norfolk Registry of Deeds employees kept the Registry open and operational every work day during the COVID-19 pandemic since current Massachusetts Governor Charles Baker, who grew up in the Norfolk County town of Needham, declared a State of Emergency back on March 10, 2020.

Do you think the very first Governor of Massachusetts John Hancock who signed into law legislation establishing Norfolk County and the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds on June 20, 1793 would help residents facing eviction or foreclosure. As of this May, the Baker-Polito administration reported that $119.3 million in rental assistance has been distributed among nearly 25,000 Massachusetts households.

Sen. Keenan Highlights Need To Connect Individuals In Housing Crisis To Financial Assistance

"There is money available for tenants, landlords and homeowners," said Keenan, "so we urge all those facing housing hardships to take advantage of these programs."

From the federal government, the Commonwealth received $437 million for housing assistance with the passage of the Consolidated Appropriations Act in December 2020, and it received an additional $360M through the American Rescue Plan Act in March.

Despite the plentiful amount of funding available, and the continued voiced need of financial assistance by all parties, data from the Department of Housing and Community Development shows applicants are being denied due to incomplete documentation and property owners being unwilling to participate. Ensuring that all parties are informed of the documentation needed to proceed is critical to addressing this financial barrier to housing.

Landlords who own up to 20 rental properties are eligible to apply directly for rental assistance on behalf of tenants who qualify for benefits.

Residents interested in seeking financial assistance can apply through the state's Residential Assistance for Families in Transition program (RAFT), Emergency Rental Assistance Program (ERAP), and Emergency Rental and Mortgage Assistance program (ERMA), and are urged to contact their regional housing agencies for eligibility information granted to an applicant varies among programs.

When submitting an application, renters and landlords must be able to submit the following:

- I.D. for the rental property's Head of Household with full name and date of birth (for example: state issued driver's license, birth certificate, or passport)

- Proof of renter's current housing (for example: a lease, tenancy agreement, or tenancy at-will form)

- Verification of housing crisis, such as notice of arrears or balance overdue, court summons, notice to quit, notice of eviction, or a letter from host if doubled up

- Verification of income

Landlords are also required to provide the following materials for applications:

- W-9 for property owner or authorized agent of the property owner

- Proof of ownership of the housing unit

ERAP applicants are additionally required to provide a statement attesting to unemployment, decreased wages, or increased expenses due to COVID-19. If approved, renters are eligible for up to 12 months of rental arrears, plus an extra three months if funding allows and need is demonstrated. Applicants can only apply for assistance with expenses accrued since March 13, 2020.

RAFT applicants are eligible for as much as $10,000 in assistance that can be put toward rent or mortgage arrears or security deposits. If unable to qualify for RAFT benefits, renters and property owners are encouraged to apply through ERMA. Like RAFT, ERMA recipients can receive up to $10,000 in financial assistance with rent or mortgage arrears accrued after April 1, 2020, or with upcoming rent or mortgage payments.

Residents that are currently homeless or believe they are on the immediate verge of homelessness are urged to contact their community's Family Resource Center (FRC) or call (866)-584-0653 to speak with a homeless coordinator.

House Asian Caucus Condemns Targeting Of Southeast Asian Americans For Deportation

III (D-Westport).

"No one should have to live in fear of being separated from their families and communities," said Rep. Maria D. Robinson (D-Framingham). "Southeast Asian refugees fleeing violence and genocide now face further trauma from the threat of removal from the United States."

"We are at a pivotal moment in our nation's history to meaningfully acknowledge our role in horrific war and oppression of our sisters and brothers from Southeast Asia by demanding the US government to right the wrongs of our deportation policy," said Rep. Erika Uytterhoeven (D-Somerville). "We hope that our President and Congressional delegation will work with us to end targeted deportations."

Massachusetts is home to the sixth largest Southeast Asian American population in the United States. This vibrant and diverse community is made up of Hmong, Lao, Vietnamese, Cambodian, and other ethnic minority groups, many of whom arrived as refugees after being displaced by decades of war, in particular the Vietnam War, or the American War as it is known by the Southeast Asian community. These communities have enriched the social, cultural, and economic landscape of the United States and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

In 2002, the United States established a repatriation agreement with Cambodia that would allow for the deportation of Cambodian refugees in the United States back to Cambodia. Following the Cambodian repatriation agreement, the United States established a repatriation agreement with Vietnam in 2008. This formalized agreement would facilitate the deportation of Vietnamese refugees and immigrants back to Vietnam who had arrived to the United States after July 12, 1995. However, some categories were included in the Vietnam repatriation agreement to afford some protection to refugees from Vietnam against deportation. In 2018, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security tried to reinterpret the Vietnam agreement to unilaterally include pre-1995 refugees as eligible for deportation. This reinterpretation of the agreement has led to a handful of pre-1995 Vietnamese refugees being deported to Vietnam. Subsequently in 2020, diplomatic pressure was put on Laos to accept more Laotian, Hmong, Mien, Khmu, and other ethnic groups from Laos for deportation.

Many of the people facing deportation are refugees and survivors from the Vietnam War, Khmer Rouge Genocide, and the mass carpet bombing in Laos. Upon resettlement to the United States through the Refugee Resettlement Program, they became legal permanent residents. In the process of resettlement, Southeast Asian refugees faced many struggles, including mental health issues, poverty, language barriers, poor school environments and over-policing. Due to the lack of structural support as many Southeast Asian refugees resettled in this country, many found themselves interfacing with the criminal legal system because of criminal convictions, which led to the loss of their legal permanent status.

Decades later, many of the community members who are facing deportation have since served their sentences, rebuilt their lives, started families, and see this country as their home. For many, the United States is the only home they have known for more than a quarter century, many having only lived in refugee camps and never having stepped foot in their country of origin. An estimated 2.7 million Southeast Asians live in the United States today, with at least 16,000 people having received final orders of deportation, including 1,900 Cambodian Americans, 4,600 Laotian Americans, including Hmong, Mien, and other ethnic minority communities, and 8,600 Vietnamese Americans, including Montagnard and other ethnic minorities.

The House Asian Caucus and the undersigned Legislators stand in solidarity with the Commonwealth's Southeast Asian populations. We ask that President Biden and the United States Congress end the policy of racially biased forced deportations.

The Garden Bug

Peonies usually bloom late spring through early summer; however, some nurseries offer midsummer or late-summer varieties. There are six peony flower types to choose from: anemone, single, Japanese, semi-double, double and bomb. Some peonies have pretty scents like roses or lemons, while others have none at all. Peonies flower every year for many years; some have done so for over 100 years.

Councillors Pass $345.98 Million FY '22 Budget

makes no reference to those positions.

"There is missing pieces to the budget and the most important thing we don't have, and it has to change going forward, is being transparent with the number of people we have working in the city whether they are being paid through the general fund or through other things," Mahoney said. "Those things need to be more transparent otherwise we are just not setting a real budget for people to know how we are spending money."

Palmucci said he voted against the budget because Koch did not fund the Department of Social Justice and Equity that councillors had approved creating in January. The department, as established by ordinance, would consist of a single employee.

"I am going to vote no, and it is purely because of the unfunded position that the mayor chose to ignore this body and many, many residents about," Palmucci said. "That is the reason I am going to vote against this budget this year despite there being so many very positive things in it that I do support."

Councillor Noel DiBona, who voted to approve the budget, said councillors cut more from the budget this year than they have in recent years. He said it is important for the council to serve as a check and balance.

"I think the tide is changing. I think the council has gotten very strong as a group with a lot of different personalities. I thought it really shined as a group," DiBona said. "I think it is important – the checks and balances of a true government is very important."

Earlier on June 24, Mahoney, Palmucci and Council President Nina Liang voted against the $882,298 budget for the mayor's office, which is level funded from the prior budget. The budget for the mayor's office does include a line item for a diversity and inclusion officer, without assigning it a salary.

Palmucci and Liang said they voted against that budget because the Department of Social Justice and Equity was not included in Koch's spending plan, while Mahoney cited concerns about transparency.

During the budget hearing for the mayor's office, Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff, said the mayor has established a commission on diversity, inclusion and equity, which could recommend the department be funded.

"The door hasn't closed to it. We would not have appointed a commission in the middle of this discussion to look at these issues and really drill down if anything is off the table," Walker said. "I think he has been pretty clear about that – that nothing is off the table."

Ward 2 Councillor Anthony Andronico asked Walker when that commission, which Koch announced he was forming on March 23, would be meeting. Andronico had cosponsored a resolution on May 3 asking for an update on the status of the commission.

"I was hoping we could actually set a hard date, because in times past the council has asked for an update and we were told it would be one or two weeks," Andronico said during the budget hearing.

Walker said the commission is scheduled to meet July 8 and an announcement saying who is on the commission could be coming this week.

Councillors made the pair of cuts to the budget during their budget hearings on June 23.

The larger of the two cuts made to the budget that night, $401,500, came from the park and forestry budget. Those funds represent the cost of running the Furnace Brook Golf Club – which the city will take ownership of in January 2022 in accordance with a 1970s agreement with the club – from January through June of next year.

David Murphy, the city's commissioner of natural resources, said the revenue the golf course generates would be enough to offset the cost of running it. He said operating the club as a municipal course would make the sport more accessible to residents and suggested the course and nearby Forbes Hill Playground could be used to create a training center for new golfers.

"I think that golf is a sport that is very exclusive. I think if you look at the way the golf courses in this city have been run in the past, including this very course, they have created a lot of barriers to entry, I think, to a lot of people who may otherwise enjoy the game or sport of golf," Murphy said.

"Adding a nine-hole golf course to our inventory of parks is really going to open up some opportunities for our residents that otherwise wouldn't exist."

Running and marketing the club as a municipal course could also bolster the revenue it generates from greens fees, he added.

"I remember as young

Quincy resident trying to go up there and golf and being told it was a private course and I wouldn't be able to golf," Murphy said. "I think marketing Furnace Brook as a public course is also going to impact the revenue in a positive fashion as it relates to walk-up greens fees."

"I think there is an opportunity here that could actually benefit the taxpayer."

Palmucci questioned whether the city would be able to manage a golf course and noted the matter had not been discussed with councillors previously.

"I still haven't been persuaded and convinced of the city's capability to manage and oversee a golf course. We variously have been in the hospital business, the college business, it is proposed we be in the presidential library business, and I am just not sold on the expense," Palmucci said.

"I get it will be offset by revenues we expect, but maybe that is in the short-term. In the long-term, there are going to be a lot of capital needs."

Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain, in whose district the club is located, said the administration had not reached out to him about its plans for the site.

"I'm a little surprised to see some of these things in here and there really hasn't been much by way of neighborhood input. I hope that is the path we are going to go down so we can figure out what is the best sort of application to serve the needs of the neighborhood," Cain said.

"I think people are under some impression it might be developable land, but it is nice to know the city wants to keep the space open. I value that property – I grew up around there and I live right by it now."

"Please keep me in the loop or let's engage, because I sort of don't appreciate being updated on this through a budget hearing."

Palmucci at first proposed a cut of $142,500 from the park and forestry budget – equivalent to the salaries of several course employees. He said he wanted to have a public discussion about the future of the course, rather than hurt the employees whose salaries would be cut.

Cain asked that the park and forestry budget be put on hold for the night. Cain suggested Murphy could come back to the council the following night and provide additional information on the golf club's finances to show how they would offset the cost of maintaining and running the course.

Walker, the mayor's chief of staff, said the matter was not time sensitive because the city would not be taking over the course until January. Walker said councillors could remove all golf-related expenses from the budget and have the administration provide more information on the matter later this year.

Palmucci then moved to cut the $401,500 for the course from the budget. Councillors agreed to do so in a unanimous vote.

The second cut – $267,164 from a long-term debt line item in the budget – was also unanimously approved.

Palmucci proposed that cut because he said the administration funded several positions using district-improvement-financing bonds – a program that allows the city to borrow money for Quincy Center and pay it back using new tax revenue generated in the downtown – despite councillors' past concerns about that practice.

He said borrowing money is necessary when the city wishes to build things like schools but said the city should not borrow money to pay employees' salaries.

"The bond is like a credit card – you don't pay your bills with a credit card unless you are in complete financial straits. You don't pay your bills with a credit card – you buy something big you can't afford in a lump sum so you can pay it over time," Palmucci said.

"It is fine for building a school, building a police station, an animal shelter, what have you, but when we have salaries and payroll coming off of debt, we are paying interest on that and it is very frustrating to me. The administration has continued to use the DIF fund...as a source of monies to continue to add people to the payroll."

Eric Mason, the city's finance director, said the city would have to pay off the debt service it owes regardless of how much money is set aside for it in the budget. He said councillors might be asked next June to use surpluses in other line items to make up for a potential shortfall in the debt service line items.

Councillors made one other adjustment to the budget on June 23, trimming a combined $425 from the Council on Aging's line items for dues and memberships. Liang, the council president, motioned to cut those line items based on previous years' expenditures and it was approved in a 6-3 vote. Andronico, Cain, DiBona, Mahoney and William Harris joined Liang in voting for that cut. Palmucci, Charles Phelan Jr. and David McCarthy opposed doing so.

Councillors restored those funds during the following night's meeting. Harris made a motion to reconsider the cut, saying he voted for it because of technical difficulties. The motion was approved in a 5-4 vote; Harris and DiBona both voted to restore the funds after voting to cut them the previous night.

Three other cuts were proposed during the June 23 meeting but failed to gain enough support.

Palmucci proposed taking $170,619 out of the municipal finance budget, equal to the salaries of the strategic asset manager and financial analysts positions, because he said the council had not been asked to approve of either of those jobs.

Mason, who was promoted to the finance director's role midyear, said the strategic asset manager replaced his former position of chief analyst/economist and the financial analyst position was created by reclassifying an administrative secretary position.

That proposed cut failed in a 4-5 vote. Cain, Liang and Mahoney joined Palmucci in support of it.

The two proposed other cuts both relate to a pair of new employees, a horticultural/laborer position and a handyman/laborer, who would be assigned to work solely in Quincy Center. Those positions each have a $72,000 salary split evenly between the park and forestry budget and the public buildings budget.

Mahoney first proposed cutting those positions in the park and forestry budget, but that motion failed in a 3-6 vote. Liang and Palmucci joined Mahoney in supporting that cut.

Palmucci later proposed cutting those positions from the public buildings budget. That motion failed in a 3-6 vote along the same lines.

In addition to approving the general fund budget, councillors on June 24 unanimously approved the sewer and water enterprise fund budgets. Those two budgets are funded by sewer and water ratepayers.

The sewer enterprise fund budget for fiscal year 2022 is $26.53 million, up from $25.64 million. The water enterprise fund budget will increase from $18.59 million to $21.44 million in fiscal year 2022.

Quincy Rotary Club Ready For 98th Year

A real highlight and fixture in the City of Quincy for 97 years, the Quincy Rotary is still going strong.

The Club conducted swearing-in ceremonies for Officers and Board/Trustees June 16 for a 98th year. The new year of service above self, themed "Serve to Change Lives" officially begins July 1 and Rotary's officers here and in 35,000 clubs around the world are gearing up for another challenging year for Rotary's 1.2 million members.

In brief remarks, incoming President Barbara Clarke urged Rotarians to "put the passion in compassion" to dream BIG, have vision, plan and have goals, and to meet and surpass those goals (of service to change lives) in the coming year, to have a year "we'll remember and applaud." Rotarians and guests socially-distanced met for the first time in over a year en masse to enjoy fellowship with their friends and colleagues - in many instances, relationships forged in decades of service.

Outgoing President Jennifer Elliott likened this last year to a roller coaster ride, having to be hyper-vigilant and adaptive to meet each new twist and turn and always anticipating the next steep hill or dip in the ride - all while fulfilling Rotary's mission of service. In a year dominated by loss, Rotarians worked to fill food pantry shelves and backpacks with toiletries for homeless students. Rotarians advanced technologically, becoming innovative - zooming luncheon meetings and conducting first-ever online scholarship fund-raising campaigns.

Approximately $30,000 was awarded to Quincy high school students in scholarships in May. Through the support and extraordinary generosity of Quincy Rotarians, business and community members donated funds for 28 scholarships to students from both of the city's high schools. And the service projects are never done. Recently, a team of 15 Rotarians counted, boxed and delivered hundreds of the colorful fun water safety book, Josh the Otter. Annually, Quincy Rotary provides the books, some accompanying coloring books and stickers, to Quincy Public School kindergartners. This year, to catch up for the missed year in 2020, first grade students also received them with the hope that the lesson in the book adds an extra measure of caution to and safety for the youngsters this summer.

Quincy Rotary recognizes and rewards its members with Paul Harris Fellow awards and June 16th's festivities were no exception. Three coveted Paul Harris pins were given to recognize outstanding contributions to local and international service by members.

Jennifer Elliott received her pin for exemplary Club service as president during the unprecedented times of the COVID virus. For Quincy Rotary's first Rotary International Grant to the Friends of Thai Daughters project funding a "thrivable farm" home, education and future for girls at risk of human trafficking in Chiang Thailand, Dolly Di Pesa, sponsor and Margaret Laforest, grant writer, were awarded pins jeweled to denote multiple awards. John Pasciucco, chairperson of the Paul Harris Committee, made the presentations.

Service is its own reward but it's important to reflect and marvel sometimes at what happens when dreams become reality. Rotarians constantly seek to make that happen!

Marcus Johnson Earns Bachelor Of Fine Arts Degree

Marcus A. Johnson of Quincy recently earned his Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree in visual design - digital media from the University of Massachusetts - Dartmouth. Johnson graduated Summa Cum Laude as a Commonwealth Scholar.

Season Success For Quincy Girls Youth Lacrosse

After losing the 2020 season to the pandemic, Quincy Girls Youth Lacrosse returned this year with one of the most successful seasons to date, with a record number of girls coming out from kindergarten through 8th grade.

While fun was had by all, a huge congratulations to the 5th/6th Team and the 7th/8th Team, each of whom ended the season crowned 'Champion' of the Founders League's South Shore division; sending a clear message that Quincy is now officially a 'lacrosse town' able to compete with the best of them.

CFSB Wins Youth Baseball Cal Minors Championship

With a strikeout pitch thrown by Robert Glennon, team Colonial Federal Savings Bank (CFSB) clinched the Quincy Youth Baseball "Cal Ripken" Minors League Championship for 2021.

The best-of-five playoff series started with a big win by Paul Rogers Club, which was followed up with a major comeback by CFSB with three consecutive wins to clinch the division title.

"I couldn't be more proud of the entire team," said head coach John Larmey. "We were challenged with playing the Major teams all year and got beat pretty bad most nights, but the boys never got discouraged and kept fighting. The reason I coach is to help the kids develop and improve on their skills. From the first day of the season to the last out of the playoffs, without question, each and every player did just that. That's what baseball is all about."

"Colonial Federal Savings Bank is proud to support Quincy Youth Baseball and congratulates all the players, coaches and fans for a terrific 2021 season," said Angela Blanchard, vice president - Retail Lending for CFSB.

"It was a great season of baseball for Quincy Youth Baseball," said Neil McCole, QYB vice president and Cal Majors director. "Special thanks to Coach Larmey and Coach Steve Perdios of Paul Rogers Club. The league would not be successful without our volunteer coaches. Congratulations to both clubs on a great season and series."

The team roster was comprised of Julian Anderson, Ethan Coates, Peter Comiso, Aiden Davenport, Liam DiPilato, Dylan Dunn, Matthew Fratolillo, Robert Glennon, Gavin Kirk, Nathaniel Lebo, Aidan Mattie, Samuel McCormack, Alex Nadworny, and Luke Pierce.

With a strikeout pitch thrown by JJ Healy, the Chris McCallum "Chiefs" took home the Quincy Youth Baseball Junior Farm (8-9 Year-Old) Divisional Championship trophy for 2021.

The team had an outstanding 12-2 record and finished the season in first place heading into the playoffs, which they swept in 5 games to clinch the title.

"This is a very special team," said head coach Paul Kearns. "They never quit on any game, always supported each other and carried themselves in a way that made their coaches and parents proud."

Kearns coached the team in honor of his good friend,

Chris McCallum, a Quincy native and a father of three, who passed away tragically in January 2019 at the age of 44. The McCallum family sponsored the team.

"The fact that this team was sponsored in my husband's name was a tribute in itself," said Kathy McCallum, widow of Chris McCallum.

Major League Rugby Coming To Quincy

By SCOTT JACKSON

New England's professional rugby team is set to move to Quincy from Weymouth.

The New England Free Jacks of Major League Rugby currently play their home games at Union Point, formerly the Naval Air Station South Weymouth. Ian Frenette, the CEO of Heritage Sports Ventures, said the Free Jacks are in the process of relocating to Veterans' Memorial Stadium in Quincy.

The Free Jacks will play their first home in Quincy on July 18 when they take on Rugby ATL, an Atlanta-based team. That game will air nationally on Fox Sports 1.

Quincy's Board of License Commissioners on June 22 granted a special-use permit and one-day liquor license for that game, which is the team's last regular season contest. The board also granted the same licenses for Aug. 1 and Aug. 8, in the event the Free Jacks have playoff games on those dates.

League Lacrosse, said the Free Jack games would run similar to Cannons games when they played at the stadium.

"They would look very identical," he said. "We would have a number of youth and community activities inside the stadium starting in the early afternoon and then transition into opening the gates for the entire public who had purchased tickets around two hours before the game starts."

Three or four food trucks are expected to setup at each of the Free Jacks games, Frenette said.

The rugby games typically end around 9 p.m., he added, like the lacrosse games did.

The board on June 22 also granted Heritage Sports Ventures special-use permits and one-day liquor licenses for charity events the organization will host at the stadium on Aug. 13, 14 and 26.

In other business on June 22, the Board of License Commissioners:

Granted a special-use permit and one-day liquor license to the Merrymount Association for its annual July 3 Festival at Merrymount Beach and its July 4 parade through the Merrymount Neighborhood Association President Mark Sauter said the July 3 event would be open to members and guests only.

Granted a special-use permit to the Houghs Neck Community Council for its annual July 3 Family Fun Day at Edgewater Beach. The event includes games and other family-friendly activities. Hot dogs and soda will be available.

Granted the HNCC a special-use permit and one-day liquor license for its annual ChowdaFest. This year's clam chowder cook-off will take place from 2 to 6 p.m. on Sept. 11 at the former Houghs Neck Maritime Center on Bayview Road.

Granted special-use permits and one-day liquor licenses to the Wollaston Hill Neighborhood Association for its Saturdays in the Parks series at Safford Park. Those events will take place on Saturdays from 3 to 8 p.m. between Aug. 7 and Sept. 18, and again on Oct. 9, and will include food and music.

Granted a special-use permit to the Philadelphia International Assembly of God, 350 Washington St., for a fundraiser on July 31. The event will take place from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. that day.

Granted a common victualler license to 3&1 for the premises at 1515 Hancock St., formerly home of Ocean

Coffee. Manager Aakash Sahu said the store would be "a one-stop destination for ice-cream-based desserts, candy, and fun arcade games." The store's hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

Granted gas station and repair licenses to Quincy Service Center at 627 Newport Ave. following a change of ownership, contingent on final Quincy Fire Department approval. The service station's hours will be 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays, 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturdays, and 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sundays.

Approved a change in manager for the Fowler House Café, 1049 Hancock St., from William Rizzotti to John MacNeil along with several related requests. Rizzotti said he is retiring and MacNeil would be taking over ownership of the restaurant. A request for limited outdoor music at the restaurant was withdrawn but could be resubmitted in the future.

Granted The Sly Fox, 139 Copeland St., permission to extend its cabaret license to its outdoor dining area. Manager Mary McKenna said outdoor music would be offered once or twice a month during the summer. McKenna also received permission to add a TV to the outdoor space.

The team was comprised of David Bonczar, Mikey Coleman, Charlie Deane, Andrew Glennon, JJ Healy, Noah Johnston, Gavin Ke-arns, Rory Kirk, Connor Kolander, Joe Mackey, Jaxon McCarty, and Dillon McElhinney.

Kearns credits assistant coaches Brendan Coleman and Mike Johnston, as well as Gina Mackey for their dedication and support to the team.

"Team McCallum played with heart all season," said Mike Norton, league director. "Some of these kids, it's their first time playing organized baseball. The McCallum family can be proud of these kids and coaches. They had fun, they played with class and won with dignity just as Chris McCallum would have."

NQ Boys' Volleyball Bows To Taunton In Quarterfinals

By TOM JOYCE

The sets were competitive, but the North Quincy High boys' volleyball team came up short in each of them.

The Raiders faced off against the Taunton Tigers on the road in the MIAA South division quarterfinals June 24. While they kept the scores of the set close, it was ultimately Taunton's victory. NQ lost the match 3-0 (25-18, 25-21, 25-19), bringing an end to their season.

"We didn't quite execute today," Raiders head coach Andrew Shaw said. "Our offense was not in the right mental state to execute the plan we had today. Our defense started to pick it up late in the second set and we were able to hold in there and we served really well. We managed to come up with 10 aces which definitely helped a lot. Unfortunately, our offense wasn't able to produce a lot of results today."

Taunton got off to a hot start in the first set, scoring each of the first three points and seven of the first eight to take a 7-1 lead. Momentum shifted a bit after that.

Sophomore Nathan Caldwell (18 kills) got a spike to make it a 7-2 game, giving his team possession back. It was part of a stretch where North Quincy outscored its opponent 13-7. The Raiders came within four points 18-14 thanks to an ace from sophomore Jeffery Tam (3 aces). However, after that, Taunton got some breathing room as the team went on a 5-0 run to take a nine-point lead. Taunton won the set 25-18 and the game point came on a spike.

The second set was the most competitive of the bunch. Taunton took an early 9-7 lead, but a carry penalty against them made it a one-point game. Taunton, however, didn't surrender their lead just yet though. Taunton had a block to make it 10-8. The Raiders did tie the set at 17 apiece and take an 18-17 lead, however, thanks to a pair of hitting errors from Taunton. However, that lead wouldn't last long as Taunton got the two points. Taunton also took a 22-21 lead on a NQ serving error. It was part of a 4-0 run to finish the set with a 25-21 win. The final point of the set for Taunton came on a shot the team skipped over the top of the net and the Raiders were unable to return.

Once again, Taunton had an early edge in the third set. The team took a 6-3 lead, but NQ fought back and once again had the lead for a short time. Freshman Cameron Johnston found an opening and tapped the ball over to a spot where Taunton could not return it. That tied the set at 10-10. The Raiders took the lead on the next point thanks to an ace from sophomore Bobby Lin. However, Taunton responded with a 3-0 run to regain the lead. With the set at 17-16 in Taunton's favor, a serving error on the Raiders gave their opponent a little bit more breathing room. A couple of errors against the Raiders late in the set gave Taunton a 22-18 edge. Taunton won the set 25-19 with a hard kill.

Now that the season is over, NQ will lose seven seniors to graduation: Miguel Gonzalez, Brian Bui-Tran, Steven Nguyen, Danny Tran, Leyan Zhao, Casimir Valencius, and Steve Dalla (34 assists against Taunton).

"This year was kind of tough," Shaw said of the team's senior class. "We had to cut a lot of seniors this year and the seniors we had this year didn't get to play that much. Our underclassmen were very talented. Despite not being able to play as much as they would've liked, my kids have some of the best attitudes in the world. They bring spirit to every game – regardless of whether they play or not. I absolutely love them for it. They're always in the right mental state, they always give me the best effort. I'm really fortunate to have these seniors on my team with great attitudes."

Additionally, Shaw said he thinks he has a strong team coming back next season.

"They're graduating their 6-foot-8 middle here, so they're going to lose basically all of their offense next year," he said of Taunton. "We lose our tall middle as well, but most of our starters are underclassmen. Next year we come back, in the head-to-head, I have no questions that we will beat them."

N.E. Free Jacks Rugby To Play At Vets' Stadium July 18

The New England Free Jacks of Major League Rugby (MLR), Heritage Sports Ventures (HSV) and the City of Quincy jointly announce Veterans' Memorial Stadium (VMS) in Quincy will be the new home of the New England Free Jacks. The Free Jacks and HSV have agreed on a multi-year partnership, which kicks off on July 18. VMS is set to become the team's official home for a full MLR season beginning in 2022.

The Free Jacks will play their final regular season game of the 2021 season on July 18 at Veterans' Memorial Stadium in Quincy, as a part of the two parties' expanded partnership. Heritage Sports Ventures jointly operates Veterans' Memorial Stadium with the City of Quincy to deliver premier sports, entertainment and philanthropic events to greater Boston and New England.

Veterans' Memorial Stadium in Quincy first opened its gates in 1938, and has been home to historic sporting events in the City of Quincy ever since. In its 80th anniversary year in 2018, local philanthropist and HSV co-founder Rob Hale announced a multi-year partnership with the City of Quincy, investing more than $1.5 million in renovations to the stadium, including upgraded locker and training rooms, luxury-styled seating on one side of the field, a state-of-the-art Daktronics video board, and upgraded control center and press box facilities.

"Over this last season we have been able to work with our amazing fans to build the foundational elements of the Free Jacks—community first, hard-working, innovative, accessible, high energy, and well just fun. Our vision remains focusing on these core values as we work to exponentially share the Free Jacks and MLR experience with others," said Alex Magleby, co-founder, owner and CEO of the New England Free Jacks. "Working with HSV and calling the historic Veterans' Memorial Stadium in Quincy our home is another huge step on this journey. We couldn't be more thrilled to accelerate the Free Jacks brand and experiences with the city of Quincy, HSV, and the renovated Veterans' Memorial Stadium."

Located eight miles south of Boston and easily accessible by I-93 and the MBTA Red Line, Veterans' Memorial Stadium features a unique atmosphere with seating options and open standing areas for fans to enjoy. The stadium is secured by a historic brick wall that surrounds more than half of the stadium, all of which is situated inside the beautiful settings of Merrymount Park. The significant improvements made to the historic stadium recently have greatly expanded and enhanced the experience for all users of the stadium, including fans, players, and members of the Quincy community.

"Quincy welcomes Major League Rugby's New England Free Jacks to the City. We are a sports-loving community and look forward to offering the team new spectators in the stands at Veterans' Memorial Stadium as well as welcoming the Free Jacks' fan base to enjoy spending time in our city before and after games,"

Mayor Thomas Koch said.

The Free Jacks' move to Veterans' Memorial Stadium is an extension of an ongoing partnership between the team and HSV. In March of 2021, HSV entered a strategic partnership with the Free Jacks, serving as an extension of the Free Jacks commercial partnerships, sales, and activation team.

The Free Jacks' final game of the 2021 MLR season will take place on Sunday, July 18 at 7:30 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. To purchase tickets, visit freejacks.com/tickets.

Mulvey said Shaw played an important role for the district amid the pandemic over the past year.

"Rob was an excellent principal," the superintendent said.

"His analytical skills and scheduling skills and curriculum skills were fantastic, and they were particularly crucial during this year when we had COVID and we had to run two schools – a remote school and an in-person school – and of course all the phases of full remote, hybrid and then back to full in-person while maintaining a remote school.

"He was excellent for that. He not only helped out North Quincy High School, but the entire district with regard to kind of managing that whole plan that we put together.

"It will be a loss for the district, and we wish him obviously the best."

Mulvey had previously announced John Franceschini, the principal at South West Middle School, and Ruth Whitmer, the principal at Lincoln-Hancock Community School, would be retiring this summer. Franceschini and Whitmer were both recognized during the June 9 meeting of the School Committee.

The district would like to have replacements for all three in place by mid-August, Mulvey said.

"We post for 30 days generally and the middle school and elementary school were already posted, I think, a week ago Friday. North Quincy will probably be posted today or tomorrow for 30 days," he said during the interview on June 23.

"I am hoping that by Sept. 1 all three will be in place for the beginning of the school year, if not earlier. The second to last week of August would be ideal, but that is a fast timeline, but we are going to shoot for that, so they are ready for the school year."

Mulvey will ultimately be responsible for hiring the three new principals. He plans to put together committees for each of the openings to vet applicants for those jobs.

"They will vet all the candidates and they will recommend a candidate or candidates for final interviews with me," he said.

Each committee will include members of his leadership team at the district office, a teacher from the school, a member of the Citywide PTO and a member of the school PTO, Mulvey said. A student representative might also participate in the high school and middle school committees.

There will be no interim principals at the schools while the search for new principals is ongoing, Mulvey said. Members of his leadership team will be able to help run the schools during that time.

The superintendent said the ideal candidate for the North Quincy open would have experience in both curriculum and overseeing extracurricular activities, among other qualities.

"Ideally our candidate would have extensive experience in curriculum and leadership. Not only in the curriculum realm, but managing extracurricular activities, athletics, because being a principal requires all of that," Mulvey said.

"It is the academic piece, the extracurricular piece, the athletic piece – being able to manage that and promote all of that, particularly for North Quincy, because there is just an excellent balance there right now of academics, athletics and extracurriculars. We definitely want to maintain that and expand that. That would be critical.

"It would be ideal if they had excellent scheduling experience. The other piece too for a principal now is excellent educator evaluation skills – evaluating the skills of other educators to make sure that, particularly the new educators that we bring on, are highly qualified in all four of the standards for ed. eval. That is not easy to do, and it takes skill. Rob was excellent at it so we are hoping the new principal will be too."

If possible, Mulvey said he would like to hire a minority candidate for the opening at North.

"We are going to post internally and externally and we are going to be looking for, obviously, a highly qualified candidate for that spot," he said "We are going to be looking, hopefully, for a minority candidate if possible, a highly qualified minority candidate, but obviously they have to be licensed and have the requisite experience and all that."

He would also like to find a minority candidate for the other openings at South West and Lincoln-Hancock.

"We are going to potentially look for that at South West and Lincoln as well to make the principalship reflective of the student population," Mulvey said. "It is what we are looking for ideally and hopefully we will be able to find the right candidate."

Good Deeds: The Country Opens Up

have thought citizens would be facing such a deadly and impactful health crisis due to Coronavirus?

John Hancock is also another notable citizen born in Norfolk County who was one of Boston's leader's during the crisis that led to the outbreak of the American Revolutionary War in 1775. John Hancock served more than two years in the Continental Congress in Philadelphia. He was the first to sign the Declaration of Independence in his position as President of the Continental Congress. Famous for his rather prominent signature on the Declaration of Independence John Hancock was quoted as saying during the signing ceremony, "There his Majesty King George can now read my name without glasses. And he can double the reward on my head."

The bravery of those that came before us in creating, developing and preserving this great nation of ours should never be forgotten. We may celebrate the Fourth of July with hamburgers and hotdogs. Let us never forget the meaning of the words written in the Declaration of Independence as we hopefully put the Coronavirus pandemic in the rear view mirror. The forty-first (41st) President of the United States of America George Herbert Walker Bush was born in the Norfolk County community of Milton. President Bush stated in 1989 "After 213 years, Americans can say that the experiment is a resounding success. The Fourth of July is a time to rejoice in this success, which has inspired all who seek to break the shackles of totalitarian rule and breathe in the life-giving air of liberty."

Enjoy your liberties and have a Happy and Healthy July 4th.

Supporting Those At A Crossroads

By PATRICK McDERMOTT
Norfolk County Sheriff

Across Norfolk County and the Commonwealth, we are in the height of graduation season. Seniors and parents alike are excited to see what the world holds but nervous about what comes next. It's a moment of transition, and like all transitions, it can be a little unsettling, which is why we do everything we can to set our children up for success long before they graduate.

As Sheriff, I have been thinking a lot about another important moment of transition, one for the justice-involved individuals in the House of Correction. The transition from the jail to society is a significant moment, not just for those individuals who are completing their sentence and their families, but for the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office and the staff who have been working with these men on their rehabilitation.

Just as investing in our children is an investment in our society, investing in those who are in jail pays dividends to our communities. This is why the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office focuses on helping each person in our custody improve themselves so that they not only understand how to make better decisions, but they're able to make those kinds of choices when they return home.

PATRICK McDERMOTT
Norfolk County Sheriff

At the Sheriff's Office, this investment begins the moment a justice-involved individual enters our facility. We provide a wide array of programming and educational opportunities that help people navigate issues from addiction and self-care to financial literacy and employment readiness. My goal is that every single person who goes through our facility is able to use their time here to improve their lives and set themselves up for success when they leave. Whether this involves our innovative recovery panels, in which justice-involved individuals are connected with community partners to help them navigate substance use in their post-release life, or industry-recognized certification classes that provide participants with concrete job skills they can use after they've re-entered their communities, these programs give people the skills and resources to make positive, lasting changes in their lives.

Setting people up for success also means providing a stable landing pad for those who have completed their time with us. One of the ways that we do this is by investing in and cultivating relationships with area organizations and employers to ensure that every person leaving the House of Correction has a support network in place. For example, our partnership with the South Shore Workforce Development Board and the MassHire South Shore Career Center provides post-release stability and opportunities to our justice-involved individuals through job training, life-skills training, and consistent outreach and mentoring. And we are actively working with employers to let them know the programs and benefits that exist to help support them in hiring former justice-involved individuals, including federal bonding programs and tax credits that protect employers and incentivize them to hire those who have served time. Additionally, our educational partnerships with institutions such as Massachusetts Community College and Quincy College help to promote a culture of learning and training that keeps people on the right path.

As Sheriff, I am proud of the work that we do to help people turn their lives around, but I also know that there is always more that we can do. This is why I'm always looking for new opportunities and ways to reduce recidivism, including programs we're developing right now, such as small business seminars that show participants how to start up and run their own small businesses or an employment referral program that connects employers with people who have desirable skills. We are also working with local chambers of commerce to further open as many post-release employment opportunities as possible.

Like our graduates, justice-involved individuals are at a crossroads in their lives. The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office is invested in their success, because their success is our success. When we give people the resources – and the opportunity – to make good decisions and positive change, we all benefit, and we can see these benefits in our neighborhoods and communities.

Milton Man Pleads Guilty To Running Illegal Tobacco Distribution Scheme

A Milton man has pleaded guilty and been sentenced in connection with running an illegal tobacco distribution network out of his home, as well as a self-storage facility in Randolph, Attorney General Maura Healey announced.

James Indelicato, age 53, pleaded guilty on June 16 in Suffolk Superior Court to tax evasion (2 counts), money laundering (1 count), and conspiracy (1 count). Indelicato was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction, suspended for a probationary period of three years, with the condition that he be barred from distributing tobacco products in the Commonwealth while on probation.

"This defendant orchestrated an intricate scheme in order to distribute tobacco illegally in various communities in our state," Healey said. "Along with our state partners, we were able to successfully dismantle this operation and prosecute the individual running it."

"The Illegal Tobacco Task Force aims to protect Massachusetts taxpayers and prevent businesses from depriving the Commonwealth of legitimate state revenue," said DOR Commissioner Geoffrey E. Snyder. "Disregard for Massachusetts tax laws impacts all taxpayers, and we at the Department remain committed to working closely with both the Attorney General's Office and the Illegal Tobacco Task Force."

Indelicato was indicted in October 2019 in connection with his illegal tobacco distribution network along with Paul Veneto, of Braintree, following a referral from the Illegal Tobacco Task Force. The case against Veneto is ongoing.

From 2016 through 2018, Indelicato sold tobacco products that required taxes of over $360,000 and failed to pay any tax associated with the sale and distribution of the products. Indelicato imported smoking tobacco, cigars, and smokeless tobacco from distributors in Pennsylvania and then sold the products via delivery van to retail stores and gas stations in Abington, Boston, Dedham, Holbrook, Quincy, Randolph, and Weymouth.

Indelicato ran the scheme through his business, MetroMax Wholesale, and was able to sustain it by laundering the cash paid by retailers to purchase more tobacco products.

This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Attorney General Edward Beagan, Senior Trial Counsel in AG Healey's White Collar and Public Integrity Division with assistance from Financial Investigator Anthony Taylor, of the AG's Financial Investigations Division, Massachusetts State Police assigned to the AG's Office, and the Massachusetts Department of Revenue.

CUSO Financial, QCU New Partnership

CUSO Financial Services, L.P. ("CFS") announces a multi-year agreement with Quincy Credit Union ("QCU") to implement and grow its investment services program through Quincy Investment Services, an affiliate of Quincy Credit Union.

The relationship with CFS comes at a pivotal time for QCU as it seeks to expand its suite of products and services to include investment services and meet the growing needs of the community.

Currently, QCU serves over 35,000 members with approximately $700 million in assets. This partnership will enable QCU to serve more members of its community, provide options for holistic retirement and financial planning solutions, and build an enhanced digital presence.

"Quincy Credit Union is proud to partner with the industry-leading team at CFS to launch Quincy Investment Services," said John Miller, CEO at Quincy Credit Union. "We've listened to our members, who have been asking for investment services, and are excited to offer them both through our branches and digital channels."

"I've partnered with CFS at previous financial institutions and am confident that together, we will deliver top-notch and personalized services that our members deserve. CFS has excellent financial advisors and leading digital platforms that will serve current and future members through the channels of their choice," Miller added.

Since 1997, CFS has provided investment programs with award-winning technology, comprehensive support services, and a customizable collection of investment solutions. These solutions are exclusively delivered by teams of experienced personnel and are designed to serve the expanding financial needs of credit unions. Today, CFS and its parent firm, Atria Wealth Solutions, Inc., maintain a steadfast commitment to technology and digital innovation, designed to enhance, not replace, the human connection and deepen relationships. CFS enables credit unions to provide an exceptional experience to their members, using its acclaimed integrated advisor platform, Unio, its celebrated intuitive client portal, Clear1, and its investment services expertise.

"We are really excited that QCU chose to partner with CFS," said Valerie Seyfert, resident of CFS. "We've had a longstanding relationship with John Miller, and he knows firsthand how a strategic partnership with CFS can elevate QCU's relationship with its members. Driven by our vision and commitment to help firms bring out their best, we look forward to helping QCU deepen its relationships with its members. By understanding QCU's unique needs, CFS will be able to provide expert advice and customized investment solutions for the communities it serves."

Community Preservation Act And Administrator's Salary

"Community preservation," the acquisition, creation and preservation of open space, the acquisition, creation and preservation of historic resources and the creation and preservation of community housing.

Really!

We are allocating $50,284 from the Community Preservation Act to the Park Dept. to help pay the CPA's administrator's salary?

Let's see, the CPA money is automatically collected off property taxes, the state matches a portion, groups submit an application for CPA funding and a $50,284+ administrator spins the pointer to see who gets CPA money which includes a space that says "Administrator's Salary."

Very nice, and where does that fall within the definition of "Community Preservation" as stated above?

Donors Urgently Needed: Red Cross Still Facing Severe Blood Shortage

The American Red Cross continues to experience a severe blood shortage that is negatively affecting blood product availability across the country. Donors of all blood types – especially type O and those giving platelets – are urged to make an appointment to give now and help ensure hospital shelves are stocked with blood products over the Fourth of July holiday and beyond.

Right now, the Red Cross is working around the clock to provide blood products to hospitals responding to an unusually high number of traumas and emergency room visits, as well as overdoses and resulting transplants. As a result of the blood shortage, some hospitals are being forced to slow the pace of elective surgeries until the blood supply stabilizes, delaying crucial patient care.

In addition, while summer is traditionally a time when blood donations decline, this year is particularly challenging as many Americans receive their vaccinations and resume summer activities after more than a year of limited interactions and travel, leading to lower donor turnout. The need for blood doesn't take a holiday break – patients still depend on lifesaving transfusions.

Donors are needed now to prevent further delays to patient care. Schedule an appointment to give blood now by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org, calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enabling the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device.

Harold F. Conley

A funeral Mass for Harold F. "Harry" Conley of Quincy, formerly of South Boston, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Conley died peacefully at home on June 22.

Beloved husband to his wife of 67 years, Phyllis M. (Ambroceo) Conley. He was the proud father of 3 children, Martin and his wife, Ann of Holliston, Karen and her husband, Robert Villa of Rockland, and Mary Jo and her husband, Matthew Hull of Hingham. Grandpa and Papa to his precious grandchildren, Cayla, Stephen, Samuel, Margaret, Bailey, Olivia, and Harry; and great grandpa to Emma, Danny, Benjamin, and Linden. Son of the late Martin and Helen (Barter) Conley. Brother of

HAROLD F. CONLEY

Doris Young and preceded in death by his brothers Russell and Kenneth Conley. He is also survived by many loving nieces and nephews.

Mr. Conley joined the Army at the age of 18 where he served 4 honorable years. He was a retired US postal worker. Mr. Conley loved traveling, especially to Las Vegas and Florida. He also enjoyed a memorable visit to Ireland. He also loved to relax at his place in Tam-worth, New Hampshire. Mostly Mr. Conley will be remembered for being a wonderful husband and father who was a good and gentle man.

Mr. Conley was given exceptional care by Hospice of the South Shore. His family would like to give special thanks to Sara, Colleen, Amanda, and Cindy for their kindness and compassion.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Mary T. McLellan, 94

MARY T. McLELLAN

ian work at the Fore River Shipyard, Quincy.

Following WWII, she married George B. Savage who together established a successful real estate business in Quincy. During the Great Depression her father's employment was very intermittent causing her family to move 9 times from one to another inexpensive rental home in Quincy. Her personal experience of residing in diverse Quincy neighborhoods provided her with a unique understanding that helped match people with a perfect home.

In 1971 she married Vincent B. McLellan and became stepmother to his 6 children. They enjoyed many happy years together traveling, boating, playing golf and bridge, and being with good friends and family. Over the years Mrs. McLellan showed great strength in caring for her husband, as he battled and eventually succumbed to cancer. For the remainder of her life, she totally enjoyed and treasured joining the extended McLellan family.

Mrs. McLellan maintained her full-time career as well as advancing her library science and professional certifications.

Attended Simmons University School of Library Science. Attended university extension courses at Harvard University, Boston State College, Boston University, and Suffolk University. Completed the program for senior executives, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, J. F. Kennedy School of Government and Harvard University.

Mrs. McLellan was professional librarian, 1965-1969, at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy. She retired as deputy director of the State Library of Massachusetts, a government research library, State House, Boston.

Co-author of the Guide to Massachusetts Legislative and Government Research: Chapter Three, "Legislative Research," Handbook of Legal Research in Massachusetts. Margot Botsford, Ruth Matz et al. MCLE.

She with Vin were lecturers at Our Lady of Good Counsel, Quincy, where she authored the History of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy, MA. Throughout her long life Mrs. McLellan never hesitated to assist in filling a void when the opportunity arose. Following a 1950s child drowning, she actively advocated for fencing to be installed around the Quincy quarries. This was the first of many subsequent volunteer service and advocacy for good causes.

A 15-year member, board of directors, Palm Aire at DeSoto Lakes Country Club Condominium Association, Inc., Sarasota, Florida, 2011-2013. Member board of directors at White Cliffs Condo Four, Plymouth.

Visiting hours were 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Davis Life Celebration Funeral Home, Plymouth (Manomet).

Interment at Gate of Heaven Cemetery in East Providence, R.I. Memorial donations may be made "for use by Saint Bonaventure Parish only," P.O. BOX 996, Manomet, MA 02345.

Timothy P. O'Brien

A celebration of the life of Timothy "Tim" P. O'Brien of Plympton, beloved husband of Eileen Mallen-O'Brien, was held Tuesday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mr. O'Brien died suddenly Feb. 19.

He was born in North Quincy, the youngest of six children, to the late William H. O'Brien and Anne F. (Place) O'Brien. Mr. O'Brien had a brilliant mind and a kind and generous spirit, and he was deeply loved by both family and his many life-long friends. For them, the essence of Mr. O'Brien was his joyful presence and sense of humor — we delighted in his quick wit and recall times when we literally ached from laughing!

Family was top priority for Mr. O'Brien. He shared a deep love with his wife, Eileen, and their relationship had a magic of love and laughter that most people can only dream of. Mr. O'Brien also had great love and respect for his siblings, who all share his sense of humor — what a gift! He is forever adored by his many nieces and nephews, to whom he was a continuous mentor; he delighted in being an uncle and took any opportunity to spend time with and support them.

Mr. O'Brien was the director of engineering operations for Brookfield Properties in Cambridge. He graduated from the Quincy Vocational Technical High School and held positions as a pipefitter, plumber, engineer, and chief engineer prior to Brookfield. Mr. O'Brien excelled in his career and was a diligent professional, highly regarded in the industry. His work was of great importance to him, and it showed in the results and the relationships that were fostered with his many colleagues and friends.

TIMOTHY P. O'BRIEN

Mr. O'Brien enjoyed hiking, biking, sailing, water skiing, snow skiing, and paddle boarding. But mostly, he enjoyed traveling. Tim and Eileen travelled extensively to some of the world's most beautiful places, with the most important people in their lives.

Mr. O'Brien led by example whether in his private life or his professional one. Part of his legacy will be the many people with whom he shared his knowledge and experience and his genuine desire for their success.

Tim O'Brien was a true gentleman. He was kind-hearted and he was a man of integrity. Tim's passing will leave a great void in our world.

Tim O'Brien is survived by his loving wife Eileen and by his siblings: Martha Cadoff and her husband Steven of Sharon; Denis O'Brien and his wife Janice of Weymouth; Kevin O'Brien and his wife Jan Marie of Columbia, SC; and Terry McLaughlin and her husband Tim of Mansfield. Tim is predeceased by his sister Maureen Ellis and her husband Joe. Tim was equally loved by his brothers-in-law: David Mallen and his wife Alice of Pembroke; Joe Mallen and his wife Julie of Concord; Paul Mallen and his wife Pat of New Hampshire; James Mallen and Mary Lou of San Diego, CA; and the late John Mallen. Tim was very close to many of his 24 nieces and nephews, his great nieces and nephews, and last year he met 2 great-greats!

Memorial donations may be made to the Tim O'Brien Scholarship Fund at the Hull Lifesaving Museum at lifesavingmuseum.org. This fund has been set up to help area youth to participate in programs such as the Summer Adventure Program and Youth Rowing.

is survived by nieces, Janet Thomas of Quincy and Barbara Such, her husband Robert and their daughter Allison of Brockton and a nephew Robert Thomas, his wife Nia and their son Llewelyn of Easthampton.

Mr. Thomas was very active with his church, St. Chrysostom's in Quincy, and was known to be a generous and reliable friend. He loved reading, walking, canoeing and spending time with those he loved.

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Rita M. Jensen, 90

A funeral Mass for Rita M. (Shea) Jensen, age 90, of Braintree was celebrated Tuesday in Sacred Heart Church, Weymouth.

Mrs. Jensen died peacefully at home surrounded by her family on June 20.

She was born in Boston and graduated from North Quincy High School. Mrs. Jensen was a loving homemaker who took pride in raising her family. She was extremely active in the special needs community in support of her 2 youngest children. She was a member of many mothers support groups and built several life-long friendships. Mrs. Jensen enjoyed baking, gardening, sewing and spending time with those she loved. She will be sadly missed by all those who had the plea-

Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Helen Andrews, 84

A funeral service for Helen (Rautiala) Andrews, 84, of Braintree was held June 24 in Peck Funeral Chapel, Braintree.

Mrs. Andrews died peacefully June 17 at Seasons Hospice Home in Milton.

Born on March 13, 1937, in Quincy, daughter of the late Eino and Hilja (Tos-savainen) Rautiala, she was the youngest of 13 children. Mrs. Andrews was a graduate of Quincy High School and devoted her life to caring for her family.

HELEN ANDREWS

Beloved wife of the late Michael P. Andrews, and loving mother of Michael

P. Andrews and his wife Julie, Stephen E. Andrews and his wife Cathy, and Paul Andrews, all of Braintree. Mrs. Andrews loved reading and spending time outdoors. However, her greatest joy was found spending time with her four grandchildren, Nicholas Andrews and his wife Nicole, Valerie, Jeff, and Jack Andrews, along with her two great-grandchildren, Cooper and Watson.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Council OKs $9 Million For Adams Academy Taking

By SCOTT JACKSON
City councillors recently approved Mayor

Thomas Koch's request to take the Adams Academy and a neighboring property — a site the mayor has said could one day be home to a new John Adams presidential library.

The City Council on June 21 approved borrowing $9 million to acquire the Adams Academy at 8 Adams St. and the neighboring property at 24-26 Adams St. The council also approved an order to take those parcels by eminent domain.

The items were passed in a pair of 8-1 votes, with Councillor Anne Mahoney opposed to each.

Councillors had previously given initial approval to both those items during a June 14 meeting of the finance committee.

At that earlier meeting, Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff, said there were no immediate plans to construct the proposed library. He said acquiring the properties would stop them from being developed.

"There is no plan as it exists today for the presidential library," Walker said. "That is a massive undertaking. It is going to require most likely foundation money, state money, city money to some degree, federal money hopefully, but the opportunity presented itself to protect the corridor — to forestall this housing development right on top of the academy and to protect the academy as well."

While the city would use eminent domain to clear title to the properties at 24 and 26 Adams St., James Masterman, an attorney for the city, said the city has agreed to pay the owner of those properties $6.7 million in compensation for the land.

The remaining $2.3 million would be set aside for the taking of the Adams Academy. The ownership of the Adams Academy is currently the subject of litigation between the city and the Adams Temple and School Fund. The city has asserted it owns the parcel of land the academy is located on, while the trust owns the building itself.

By using eminent domain, Masterman said the city would clear title to the Adams Academy site and building. The fund's trustee would have the option to go to court to seek additional compensation on top of the $2.3 million.

The $9 million bond the city will use to acquire the properties will be paid back using community preservation funds.

Mahoney, at the June 14 meeting, said the city is "basically bankrupting the CPA monies" and stopping "anybody from doing anything in the city of Quincy using the CPA monies for historic or open space or anything else."

Walker said the bond, which had previously been

AAA: Massachusetts Gas Prices Up Three Cents

Massachusetts's average gas price is up 3 cents from last week ($2.95), averaging $2.98 per gallon. Monday's price is 7 cents higher than a month ago ($2.91), and 88 cents higher than June 28, 2020 ($2.10). Massachusetts's average gas price is 11 cents lower than the national average.

While it is typical to see gas prices increase ahead of a holiday, especially during the peak summer driving season, pump price increases as of late have been noticeable.

"Today, 89% of U.S. gas stations are selling regular unleaded for $2.75 or more. That is a stark increase over last July 4 when only a quarter of stations were selling gas for more than $2.25," said Mary Maguire, AAA Northeast Director of Public and Government Affairs. "Road trippers will pay the most to fill up for the holiday since 2014."

Crude oil, and in turn gas prices, are more expensive compared to years past mostly due to three major factors: confidence in worldwide vaccination rollout, global oil demand spikes, and the easing of travel restrictions leading to optimism for leisure travel. Motorists can expect little relief at the pump following the holiday. With crude oil prices likely to continue climbing, gas prices are most likely to see increases through the end of summer.

AAA Northeast's June 28 survey of fuel prices found the current national average to be 2 cents higher than last week ($3.07), averaging $3.09 a gallon. Monday's national average price is 5 cents higher than a month ago ($3.04), and 92 cents higher than this day last year ($2.17).

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You clever Ewes and Rams love nothing more than to rise to a challenge. So, by all means, if you feel sure about your facts, step right up and defend your side of the issue.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You've done some great work recently. Now it's time to reward yourself with something wonderful, perhaps a day at a spa or a night out with someone very special.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You love to talk, but don't forget to make time to do a little more listening; otherwise, you could miss out on an important message someone might be trying to send to you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspect indicates some uncertainty about one of your goals. Use this period of shifting attitudes to reassess what you really want and what you're ready to do to get it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your social life is picking up, and you'll soon be mingling with old friends and making new ones. But 'twixt the fun times, stay on top of changing workplace conditions.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A trusted friend offers understanding as you vent some long-pent-up feelings. Now, move on from there and start making the changes you've put off all this time.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might well feel uneasy as you face a difficult situation involving someone close to you. But you know you're doing the right thing, so stick with your decision.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You're a good friend to others. Now's the time to allow them to be good friends to you. Rely on their trusted advice to help you get through an uncertain period.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Family and friends are always important, but especially so at this time. Despite your hectic workplace schedule, make a real effort to include them in your life.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) That project you've been working on is almost ready for presentation. But you still need some information from a colleague before you can consider it done.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't let those negative attitudes that have sprung up around you drain your energies. Shrug them off, and move ahead with the confidence that you can get the job done.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Aspects favor some dedicated fun time for the hardworking Piscean. A nice, refreshing plunge into the social swim can recharge your physical and emotional batteries.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love to travel and be with people. You probably would be happy as a social director on a cruise ship.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- The plot thickens! "The Man Who Drew God" ("L'uomo Che Disegno Dio"), which was to star Vanessa Redgrave, with a comeback cameo by Kevin Spacey, has hit a snag. Seems Redgrave had second thoughts. Her people released a statement: "Vanessa Redgrave's name was included in recent stories relating to the upcoming film 'The Man Who Drew God,' but while there have been discussions about her joining the cast, she will not appear in the film despite being directed by her husband of 15 years, Franco Nero." Redgrave and Nero began their relationship when she played Guenevere to his Lancelot in "Camelot" (1967). In 1969 they had a son, Carlo Gabriel Redgrave Sparanero, now known as screenwriter and director Carlo Nero. They drifted apart, and in 1971 she began a relationship with a former James Bond, Timothy Dalton, her co-star in "Mary, Queen Of Scots," until 1986, while Nero had relationships with Catherine Deneuve, Goldie Hawn and Ursula Andress. Their relationship resumed in 2006 and they were wed on New Year's Eve that year. The burning question: Is it Spacey's involvement that caused the snag, and can he change her mind?

In 1973 I met a beautiful model named Cheryl Jean Stoppelmoor, at the house of David Ladd (son of screen legend Alan Ladd). She was sweet and they were very much in love. She began as a singer, known as Cherie Moor and sang the voice of "Melody" in the animated CBS series "Josie & The Pussycats" (1970-1971). Later that year she married David Ladd and became Cheryl Ladd, destined for stardom as Kris Monroe, one of "Charlie's Angels" (1977-81). Ten films later, after "Camera Store" (2017), with John Larroquette and John Rhys-Davies, didn't set the box office afire, she starred in three Lifetime TV holiday films: "The Christmas Contract" (2018), "Grounded for Christmas" (2019) and "Christmas Unwrapped" (2020).

Now, at 69, she'll star in the fourth installment of the "Cowgirls & Angels" franchise, "A Cowgirl's Song," shooting in Oklahoma. "Angel" Jaclyn Smith's last film was "Random Acts of Christmas" (2019), while Kate Jackson hasn't worked since the 2004 film "Larce-ny." Maybe they should call Hallmark!

Taylor Swift has completed acting for director/screenwriter David O Russell (whose "American Hustle" and "Silver Linings Playbook" won Oscars) in a shrouded-in-mystery "untitled" film starring Christian Bale, Margot Robbie, Rami Malek and Zoe Saldana, for Disney's 20th Century Studios, which is not giving a release date either.

Postscript: Robert Redford has chosen to close down his Facebook page. It was a joy to have had it as long as we did. No longer will he have to deal with the "haters" and think, "Who were those guys!"

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Figural Tin Box --- This is not a bookshelf full of books. It is an antique tin box that held cookies (called biscuits) in England about 1905. Grocery stores in the past were very different. The use of automobiles, starting about 1910, changed the way folks shopped.

Before 1900, grocery shopping was done at a street where farmers gathered to sell their produce. Then the markets moved into large buildings that rented space where farmers and customers bartered for food. Some farmers moved to residential suburbs and opened small grocery stores. They sold staples, like flour, sugar and tea, as well as fresh food. Clerks took the order and packed it.

But in 1916, the first supermarket was built in Memphis, Tennessee, and customers were able to choose their items, put them in a cart and take it to a cashier. That led to branding with eye-catching packaging and the modern chains of grocery stores. Huntley & Palmer, an English bakery, created tin boxes by the 1850s to ship and sell their boxed cookies, called biscuits, so they wouldn't get broken. They started making the figural -- and now very collectible -- tins in 1894 and made hundreds of different shapes. The bookcase tin was made in 1905.

Q: My mother bought an Autumn Leaf wall pocket for me. I think it was part of the reproduction's resurgence and not the original 1930s to '40s Autumn Leaf. Can you tell me what it might be worth?

A: Autumn Leaf pattern was made by several companies. It was made exclusively for the Jewel Tea Company, a home shopping service, by Hall China from 1933 to 1978. Some kitchenware and teapots were reintroduced in 1985 and sold in retail stores. The Autumn Leaf wall pocket was made by China Specialties, a company in Strongsville, Ohio, that began offering limited edition pieces of Autumn Leaf in new shapes in 1990. They were made in Asia and are marked "Genuine China Specialties." They sell for under $30.

Strange BUT TRUE

* In Tikrit, Iraq, there's a 6-foot-tall monument of a shoe that journalist Muntadhar al-Zeidi threw at then-President George W. Bush.

* Speaking of shoes, a collector of same is called a Sneakerhead.

* Researchers were able to mimic the voice of a 3,000-year-old Egyptian mummy by re-creating much of its vocal tract using medical scanners, 3D printing and an electronic larynx. The mummy had little to say, however, even after all that time, as they produced just a single sound somewhere between the vowels in "bed" and "bad."

* Magnolia plants are so ancient that they're pollinated by beetles, as they existed prior to the appearance of bees.

* A study by psychologists found that when 4- to 6-year-olds pretended to be Batman while doing a boring but important task, it helped them resist distraction and stay more focused. (We're trying this the next time we wash the dishes.)

* Tootsie Rolls were added to soldiers' rations in World War II due to their ability to withstand all weather conditions.

* In medieval games of chess, pawns that had been promoted to a queen were given the title of "adviser," so as to not imply that the king had more than one queen or was guilty of adultery!

* Those tears you see in the Tin Man's eyes in "The Wizard of Oz" were made of chocolate syrup, as machine oil didn't photograph well.

* Ancient Egyptians loved their cats so much that household members would shave their eyebrows as a sign of mourning when the cat died. Mourning ended when their brows had grown back.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Groceries and food shopping can eat up a tremendous portion of your budget if you aren't careful. The best and most serious money-saving tip for home economists is to ALWAYS use a list. It really does make a difference to have a plan. Here are some more tips to save money while feeding your family. -- JoAnn

* Most stores list the unit price on the shelf tag. Use it to compare the cost of different sizes and brands of the same item. Just because a package is bigger doesn't necessarily mean it has the best price per unit.

* A secret of busy moms: Cook once, eat twice (or three times, if you plan well)! When you prepare favorite recipes that will freeze well, or even just elements of those recipes, make a double or triple batch. Then a few nights of the month, you can just pop something in the oven easily. I cook taco meat once for the month, and we have tacos every week. I just freeze three portions of the meat, and the rest is easy to assemble." -- K.S. in Florida

* "If you know you're going to make a purchase soon from a specific store, search online for discounted gift cards to that store. Many people get gift cards for places they don't shop, and they sell them at a discount for cash. That's a percentage off your purchase just for preplanning." -- E.S. in Virginia

* Remember that, typically, the higher shelves and the lower shelves at the grocery store house the better deals.

Q: Does Oprah Winfrey still have a book club even though she doesn't have her daily show anymore? I always enjoyed her recommendations, and now that it's summer, I need a new list. -- D.K.

A: She sure does. You can check out all things official for Ms. Winfrey at Oprah.com. On that same page, you can click on Oprah's Book Club: The Complete List and even print it out and mark off the selections as you read them. She also has an email newsletter (Oprah.com/app/books.html).

Winfrey recently announced her latest pick on "CBS Sunday Morning": author Nathan Harris' "The Sweetness of Water," which tells the story of two freed-slave brothers and their life post-captivity with the family who hires them. Oprah told CBS that she chose that particular work of historical fiction because she had "never seen anybody do that," meaning, asking the question, "What would those first few days, weeks, months, years [of freedom] be like?"

Before Harris's novel, Oprah chose a group of four books by author Marilynne Robinson known as the "Gilead" novels: "Gilead" (2004), "Home" (2008), "Lila" (2014) and "Jack" (2020).

Q: I'm a big fan of the TV series "Blue Bloods," which I watch every Friday night and in reruns. Is Will Estes, who plays Jamie Reagan, the son of actor Robert Estes? -- K.C.

A: There is no relation between the two actors. Rob Estes was born in 1963 and is best known for his roles on "Silk Stalkings," "Melrose Place" and "90210." I, too, always assumed Will Estes of the hit CBS drama "Blue Bloods" was related to Rob, but he's not. In fact, he was born Will Estes Nipper in 1978, but shortened it professionally. He got his big break in the series "The New Lassie" in 1989, followed by regular roles on "American Dreams" and "7th Heaven."

As a guest on "The Talk," Will told about how casting directors used to ask him if he was related to Rob Estes. He'd answer: "He's my dad, but he doesn't really acknowledge me anymore." Then he'd laugh and reveal that he was just joking.

Q: I heard that they're bringing back the classic TV series "Highway to Heaven." How will they do it without Michael Landon? -- L.P.

A: Lifetime recently announced that a new series of movies, as opposed to a weekly TV show, based on the classic 1980s drama "Highway to Heaven" will debut this fall. It stars singer/actress Jill Scott as an angel, disguised as a guidance counselor, and Barry Watson as the school principal who learns of her true identity. The movies have the blessing of the late Michael Landon's family.

Will Estes in "Blue Bloods"

If the name Barry Watson rings a bell, that's because he played Matt Camden on "7th Heaven" for 10 years. More recently, he's had regular roles on "Gossip Girl" and "Hart of Dixie." Scott is a Grammy Award-winning singer/songwriter who acted in the Emmy-nominated Lifetime movie "Flint," about the water crisis in Michigan.

Cats Shouldn't Get a Free Pass to Poop

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Could you explain why cats can poop in my garden and the owners are not responsible for them? Cats kill birds and chipmunks, and they dig in my garden. Children's sandboxes get fouled by cats. Cat poop is really unpleasant and can spread diseases. It seems unfair that cat owners should get all the enjoyment out of them, but not have to be responsible for their messes. Why do cat owners get a free pass? What can be done to keep the cats from killing birds and leaving messes in my yard? -- Pat in Spokane

DEAR PAT: You're absolutely right. Cats can wreak havoc on the local environment as they don't limit their hunting to mice: A 2013 study estimated that cats kill billions of songbirds per year in the U.S. alone (www.smithsonianmag.com and search for "The Moral Cost of Cats"). Yet owners who allow their cats outdoors often don't think that their sweet, adorable Fluffy could be a neighborhood menace. That's one reason I constantly ask owners to keep their cats indoors. It's also for the cats' personal safety; they're at risk of being attacked by bigger wildlife or other cats. Right now, there are two things you can do. First, deter cats from coming onto your property. Scatter a mixture of used coffee grounds, lemon peels and vinegar around the perimeter of the yard (pans of vinegar also work). Cover exposed ground in garden beds with river rock to discourage digging. Second, raise awareness in the community. Spread the word about the damage cats do, and what owners can do to prevent it. Do this by talking with your neighbors and speaking at town or HOA meetings. Get the word out so the entire community can address the problem.

BY RACHEL ROSE

In the Heights (PG-13) — If you pick just one movie to see in 2021, this much-anticipated musical is THE highlight of summer films. Its high-energy music-and-dance numbers tell stories of love, family, community and dreams in the predominantly Dominican New York City neighborhood of Washington Heights. With music and lyrics written by Lin-Manuel Miranda (of "Hamilton" fame), every number is impassioned and exuberant. Brooklyn native and Broadway star Anthony Ramos is dreamy in the lead role of Usnavi, but the real delight of this movie is the relatability of the stories across cultures. This is a new generation of musical, and it is spectacular. (Theaters and HBO Max)

Good on Paper (R) — For those who like best-friend shenanigans, "Good on Paper" is a familiar story that speaks to any woman who's ever second-guessed a new love interest. Main character Andrea Singer, played by comedian and writer Iliza Schlessinger, meets a nice, smart, charming, nerdy guy, Dennis. They date. He says the right things. He's funny. Seems nice. Something must be wrong with him, right? Enter Andrea's best friend Margot — the always perfect Margaret Cho — who plants the seeds of doubt and then helps investigate who Dennis really is. Ryan Hansen smoothly portrays the boyfriend in question, keeping audiences guessing if he is legit or just another smooth talker. (Netflix)

Rebel Hearts (NR) — This 2021 Sundance Film Festival documentary tells the story of the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary in Los Angeles in the 1960s. Labeled "blasphemous" and "uppity," these nuns chose to become unlikely social activists pushing for equality and modernism within an organization based on antiquated, sexist norms. Attending freedom marches and placing themselves in harm's way for justice, they ignite much criticism from the church and risk their own livelihoods in the process. But their continued legacy of selfless servitude is inspiring to both Catholics and non-religious viewers alike. (Theaters and discovery+)

PJ Masks Season 4 (G) — The children's animated series continues following the adventures of 6-year-old nighttime superheroes Amaya, Connor and Greg. Their magic pajamas provide both identity protection and superpowers as they defend their fair city as Owlette, Gekko and Catboy. Hidden messages are tucked into every episode, teaching things like patience and forgiveness, but your preschooler will love it nonetheless. (Disney+)

Scene from "In the Heights"

False Positive (R) — Happy couple Lucy and Adrian want to start a family, but realize they'll need medical help to make this happen. When a famous fertility specialist works his magic and Lucy finally becomes pregnant, it seems everything is falling into place. But when Lucy begins seeing unusual things, she becomes ever more suspicious of both her doctor and her husband. This lighthearted romantic story quickly transforms into a horror flick where nothing is as it seems. Is it just pregnancy hormones giving Lucy "mom brain," or is something much more sinister at play? Justin Theroux and Ilana Glazer star as the couple; with Pierce Brosnan as their questionable doctor. (Hulu)

Opening lead — four of spades.

Back in 1935, Ely and Jo Culbertson played a long challenge match against Hal and Dorothy Sims. Although it did not stir up as much public interest as the famous Lenz-Culbertson encounter two years earlier, the match was followed with great interest by most of the faithful in the bridge world.

Sims, a giant of a man with a dominating personality, was one of the great card players of all time. He had an unerring instinct for good card play that produced the best possible result in virtually every hand.

But in this deal, Sims, South, met his match in the person of the brilliant but shy Jo Culbertson, who chose the four of spades as her opening lead against four hearts!

The underlead of an ace against a suit contract is a practice severely frowned upon in expert circles. But Mrs. Culbertson reasoned that Sims' unwillingness to play three notrump stemmed from a weakness in spades and that dummy was correspondingly marked with some spade strength by virtue of her three-notrump bid.

So Jo, taking advantage of what seemed an ideal occasion in view of the bidding, underled the ace of spades. After studying the situation at length, Sims played low from dummy, hoping Mrs. Culbertson had led low from either the ten or the queen, or both. Ely won with the ten and returned a club to his wife's ace, whereupon Jo led a low spade again!

Sims glared at Jo for quite a while before finally deciding she wouldn't dare underlead an ace twice against the likes of himself. Accordingly, he played the jack from dummy. Ely won with the queen and returned a spade to Jo's ace, and a scarlet-faced Sims went down one.

Riddle answer: _____

Poison Ivy? Gardener Shares Home Remedy

DEAR DR. ROACH: Quite by accident, I have found a home remedy for poison ivy and poison oak. As an avid gardener, I get poison ivy once or twice a year. I always wash my hands, arms and any affected area with liquid soap. However, this time I was out of soap and used a liquid detergent with a degreaser. I put a small amount on my arm, rubbed it down my arm and added water to wash it off. I have tried different detergent degreasers over the past several months, and any of them will work. It makes sense, because poison ivy and oak have urushiol oil, and of course a degreaser would dissolve it and wash it away. I hope you can pass this on to your readers! --F.C.

ANSWER: I appreciate your writing, and I agree with your take on the issue. Poison oak, ivy and sumac all have the same irritating oil, urushiol, which is one of the few substances that can cause a severe hypersensitivity reaction the first time a person is exposed to it. Repeated exposures are often worse.

The most important advice on these poisonous plants is not to get exposed in the first place. That means removing it if it's in your yard, if possible, and knowing how to recognize and avoid it. Protective clothing is essential if you must be near it.

If you are exposed inadvertently and recognize it, then removing the oil is urgent: Within 10 minutes is best, but washing off will help even if it's two hours after exposure. Washing after the rash shows up isn't helpful. Warm water with soap or detergent is recommended, but don't over-vigorously scrub, because damaging the skin can make the rash worse. The oil can stay under the fingernails and on clothing. Clean under the nails carefully and wash clothing in hot water.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I was receiving testosterone injections for a diagnosed low testosterone level (96, with the normal 300-720). I received testosterone injections for a number of years, as directed by my doctor at that time. Ultimately, I changed doctors and the new one prohibited the testosterone injections as "too dangerous to continue." I objected then and am about to object again, since my symptoms in the past year continue to point to low testosterone, in my mind. I have low energy level, low libido and erectile dysfunction. --M.J.

ANSWER: If a person with normal testosterone takes a large amount of extra testosterone, such as athletes looking for a performance boost, there are significant risks. Scientists used to worry that a similar issue would be the case if a person with low testosterone took a replacement dose to get him into the normal range, but the fears of testosterone replacement therapy have been proven largely unjustified.

Given your symptoms and your definite low level, experts would agree that you are a good candidate for long-term testosterone replacement therapy. The risks and benefits are not known with certainty, but the evidence so far suggests no serious risks and some potential benefits on heart health even beyond improvement in symptoms. I would suggest consultation with an expert on testosterone replacement, such as a urologist.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu.

Hawaiian Lime Cottage Cheese Salad

You don't have to serve just plain old cottage cheese when you have this delicious recipe in your collection! It's colorful, easy, tasty and healthy. That makes it just about perfect.

- 3 cups fat-free cottage cheese
- 1 (4-serving) package sugar-free lime gelatin
- 1 (8-ounce) can crushed pineapple, packed in fruit juice, drained
- 3/4 cup reduced-calorie whipped topping
- 1 teaspoon coconut extract
- 3 tablespoons chopped pecans
- 2 tablespoons flaked coconut

1. In a large bowl, combine cottage cheese and dry gelatin. Stir in pineapple, whipped topping and coconut extract. Add pecans. Mix gently to combine.

2. Transfer mixture to attractive serving bowl. Evenly sprinkle coconut over top. Refrigerate for at least 30 minutes. Gently stir just before serving. Makes 6 (2/3 cup) servings.

• Each serving equals: 151 calories, 3g fat, 16g protein, 15g carb., 56mg sodium, 1gm fiber; Diabetic Exchanges: 1 Meat, 1 Starch, 1/2 Fat.

- The Beastie Boys. They once claimed that BEASTIE was an acronym for "Boys Entering Anarchistic States Towards Inner Excellence," but later admitted they'd come up with that after they already had the Beastie name.
- He played Eddie, the ex-delivery boy.
- U2. Out of all names they considered, this was the one they disliked the least. U2 appeared on Rolling Stone magazine's "The 100 Greatest Artists of All Time," coming in at No. 22 on both the 2004 and 2011 lists.
- "Last Dance," in 1978.
- "A World Without Love," by Peter and Gordon, in 1964. The duo's first single, taken from their debut album, was written by Paul McCartney when he was 16 years old.

Prayer to the Blessed Virgin
(Never known to fail!)
 Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein, you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you.
 M.T. 7/1

THE MIRACLE PRAYER
 Dear Heart of Jesus, in the past, I have asked for many favors.
 This time, I ask you this very special favor (mention favor). Take it dear Heart of Jesus, and place it within your own broken heart where your father sees it. Then in his merciful eyes it will become your favor, not mine.
 Amen.
 Say this prayer for 3 days, promise publication and favor will be granted, no matter how impossible. Never known to fail. S.C. 7/1
